Industry asks for restaurant

by Jeff Nazzaro

In October of 1993, when Jim Mahoney moved his Por-Shun, Inc. food service distributorship from Woburn to the Ballardvale-Andover Street General Industrial district of Wilmington, he was left with one nagging question: is there anywhere to eat around here?

After two years, Mahoney has decided to try to give his and the hundreds of other employees working in the town's largest industrial district a lunchtime option to brown bagging it or, more likely, traveling out-of-town for their midday eats.

Mahoney, who has lived in Wilmington for eight years, is currently gathering signatures for a petition article for the Dec. 4 Special Town Meeting. His proposed article would change the current zoning by-laws to allow limited service restaurants on land zoned General Industrial.

"We just feel there is a need for this in General Industrial," Mahoney stated. "We think it's a great idea and a lot of people think it's a great idea."

So far, the Wilmington Planning Board and Planning Director Lynn Duncan at least agree with the concept of bringing limited service restaurants to industrial districts. Mahoney met with the planning board and then with Duncan last week.

"The reason there's a need for restaurants in the Ballardvale-Andover street area is that it is such a large area and there's nothing close by," Duncan said. "There's clearly a demand."

The addition of restaurants to General Industrial-zoned areas will not only serve existing businesses, but also help attract new tenants, Mahoney reasoned.

"We really have no services up here and this what employers and employees look for," he said.

But the planning board was concerned that changing the by-laws could compromise the General Industrial districts, turning them from industrial areas to restaurant areas.

With that in mind, the planning board gave Mahoney two suggestions: first, impose limits on the space allowed per restaurant and on the space allotted for restaurants in any one industrial district; and second, require a special permit to open a restaurant. Special permits are granted by the board of appeals.

Duncan said that zoning by-law changes enacted in 1994 were designed to increase business opportunities while also giving the town greater control.

The planning board's suggestions, she said, would accomplish both - allowing restaurants in general industrial areas would presumably increase business and the special permit process, with accompanying space restrictions, would give the town augmented control.

Mahoney has followed through on both. Though as of Tuesday he had not submitted the article - the deadline is 5:00 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 13 - a draft of the proposed change reads as follows:

"Limited Service Restaurant use in the General Industrial District shall be allowed by special permit subject to the following minimum special permit criteria.

"(a) The maximum gross floor area used ... shall not exceed 2,500 sq. ft. on any one lot.

"(b) In any one continuous district zoned General Industrial, the total maximum gross floor area used ... shall not exceed 7,500 sq. ft. as a total for all lots in such district."

Mahoney said he has a proposed tenant in place to lease a 2,300 square foot unit within his building, located on Upton Drive, off Andover Street.

Despite receiving proposals from various national restaurant chains, Mahoney said that if the zoning by-laws are changed, he will lease the space to an independent businessperson who will sell basic breakfast and lunch items with takeout and eat-in service.

"We were approached by some national chains," he said, "and I didn't want to do that.

He said the restaurant, which will seat approximately 60 patrons, will be "strictly for the business people during the day" and will likely close by 3:00 p.m.

If Mahoney gathers the 100 signatures required to place an article on a Special Town Meeting warrant, his proposal would then be reviewed by the finance committee and the planning board at their joint meeting, scheduled for Nov. 7 at 7:00 p.m. at the Town Hall.

It was show off time for the Honor Physics Class at Wilmington High Wednesday morning as the students competed with catapults they built. The project is one of many this year which will teach teamwork, progressive thinking, and physics. As Science Dept. Head, Mr. Megysey explained the philosophy behind his teaching, students Bill Dineen, Dave Bennett, Brian Carroll and Dan King found out that practice doesn't always make perfect. In addition to the two linear motions to deal with, now in the competition the factors changed. Even the ground wasn't even! A one degree pitch in the ground made a tremendous change in the trajectory causing a far miss. The class took on the project with great gusto, reading way ahead in their text and doing extra research to create the perfect tennis ball launcher, but it's back to the drawing board with new data as the new factors are figured in and improvements are made.

Women's Club heading west

Anne Buzzell, Mary Woods, Norinne Markey and Constance Ferguson, all members of the Wilmington Women's Club plan to represent the group at the Fall meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, (GFWC) Mass. fall meeting, to be held October 30 in Sturbridge.

When Wilmington Women's Club was organized in 1901 with Mrs. Sophia Bond as presidents. Its object was to form a recognized center for the promotion of the intellectual and social life of its members and foster public spirit in the community. The following year - 1902, it became a member of the State Federation and in 1952 a member of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, (GFWC) the world's largest and oldest volunteer service organization with 10 million women members in more than 40 countries.

The Wilmington club has departments in the arts, conservation, education, home life, international affairs and public affairs. The GFWC is responsible for the establishment of 75 percent of America's public libraries.

With this proud and prestigious background the Wilmington Women's Club will mark its 95 anniversary in 1996, the latter half of its 1995-1996 season with its first meeting being Thursday, Oct. 19, 1995. At this time it will welcome two new members, Lorraine Fogg and Margaret Leverone.

In recognition of the 50th anniversary of the United Nations the theme of the day will be observed with an International Bake Sale and a short discussion by Frances Keough on "Women in the UN." International dolls will be displayed by Elizabeth White. The Invocation will be given by Claire Burns. A committee of hostesses for the luncheon will be chaired by Anne Buzzell and Constance Ferguson.

After luncheon and a business meeting President Edith Michelson will present the Program on New England Assistance Dog Service "NEADS," GFWC of Massachusetts President's Project.

Joe Bamberg Day – Nov. 19

by Jeff Nazzaro

The Town of Wilmington will celebrate Joe Bamberg Day Sunday, Nov. 19, 1995 following a unanimous vote and proclamation by the board of selectmen Tuesday night.

Bamberg's name was submitted by Wilmington High School Athletic Director Jim Gillis and the Friends of Joe, a support committee comprised of Sue Hendee, Laura Stinson, Christine and Paul Lacey and Laura and Steven Parsons.

Joe Bamberg Day will feature a 5K road race and other events, with all proceeds going to defray medical costs for the Bamberg family.

Joe was severely injured this summer while visiting his grandfather in Illinois. The WHS junior was the starting goalkeeper for the varsity boys soccer team last year.

The British are coming

by Jeff Nazzaro

Young British student/musicians will arrive at Wilmington High School Wednesday, Oct. 18 for part one of a cultural exchange that will be capped by a concert from pop sensation Debbie Gibson on Oct. 26 at the high school.

British students will be in Wilmington for 10 days and will stay with musicians in the Strings Attached program, directed by Ward Dilmore.

Wilmington Access is Mandatory celebrated its 8th Anniversary Tuesday where the group has met since it was founded. Front row, left to right are original volunteers Doris O'Reilly, Marian Halpern, founder Judy DiPalma, original volunteers Dorothy Phillips, Liz Wheeler, Nellie Patchell and Ethel Ross. Back row, left to right, are Congressman Peter Torkildsen aide Bill Bochnak, Sen. Bruce Tarr and Sen. Tarr aide Eric Worrall, a Wilmington resident (photo by Jeff Nazzaro).

Winchester Hospital CEO and President, Stephen Laverty awards a $500 grant to Wynn Middle School students. Accepting the grant money for their peer leadership program, S.C.O.P.E., to devise a program targeting the issue of stress and teens are (l-r) Kiley McClellan, Erin Mooney and Cathy Snow of Tewksbury.

Tewksbury teens earn grants

Winchester Hospital's Community health Institute is dedicated to promoting a healthy environment in the region it serves. The hospital awarded 10 $500 grants to teenagers to help fund student governed programs designed to deal with teen health issues. High school and middle school students gathered at Winchester Hospital recently as CEO and President, Stephen Laverty and community initiative specialist Jim Ryan distributed the grants to the different teen groups.

Begun this year, the Teen Mini-Grant program received outstanding response from the community. Applications were received from groups of teens in 12 different towns and project ideas covered a wide variety of teen health issues including suicide prevention, violence prevention, stress and drunk driving. All grants were reviewed by a Teen Board, which consisted of eight youth volunteers from Winchester Hospital and were awarded on merit.

The Community Health Institute will be providing youth leadership training programs to the teens and their adult advisors in the upcoming months. There will also be ongoing technical assistance to ensure that their projects are a success.

Computer software training at Tech

Instructors in the Business Information Services program at Shawsheen Tech spent 54 hours each this summer learning the details of the Windows environment and Microsoft Office, the software package that includes the word processing program Word, the spread sheet Excel, the presentation program PowerPoint and the Access database program.

Students begin learning the new programs this week, installed on 21 new computers. The new equipment and increasing enrollment has also meant the addition of a third computer lab for the BIS program. The change of software was a response to industry indications, as researched this summer by John McDermott, assistant superintendent- director. "I checked out a number of area companies and found that MS Office was the direction they were taking," he said.

"It was a wonderful training program," said Maureen Oliver, lead teacher in BIS, who noted that over the years, other transitions meant learning on one's own or enrolling independently in a course. Meeting as a group of teachers was beneficial, too, she added. The trainers pointed out techniques they could use and obstacles they might encounter with students; the teacher group could meet after sessions to discuss the training. Now the focus is "preparation and practice," adds Oliver.

Benefits to students will be great, she believes. "When students graduate they can say they have been exposed to the newer programs and they will be employable. They will be experienced, not only with transferable skills, but with actual expertise." Oliver says she has already had requests for students who know the Windows operating system. "There is no doubt it will be a benefit to know the Windows environment."

TMHS career office

Monday, October 16, Tewksbury Public School Office of School to Career will join Middlesex Community College and Merrimack Education center to sponsor a working seminar entitled Issues Concerning the Implementation of the School to Work Initiative. The seminar will be held in the library at Tewksbury memorial High School from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Coffee and registration will be held from 8:30 to 9 a.m.

School districts from Merrimack Valley and across the state have registered for the seminar. Each district will take a team comprised of the superintendent, the director of guidance, the high school principal and the person in the school district who is responsible for the implementation of the Mass. School to Work Act. This team will be charged with the responsibility of translating the requirements of the Act into daily classroom practice.

The seminar will feature a presentation by Stafford Peat from Mass. Ed. Mr. Peat will inform participants of the requirements and the expectations of the Department of Education of school districts as they implement the School to Work Act. This presentation will be followed by a panel discussion on the steps to be taken in integrating the school to work initiative into the basic academic program. Panelists will include representatives from the Greater Lowell land Grater Lawrence Regional Employment Board School Partnerships. These partnerships have been the recipients of substantial grant awards to support the School to Work Program.

Tech Open House

"Surfing the Internet: A World of Possibilities" is the theme for the annual Community Open House Thursday, Oct. 26 at Shawsheen Tech. From 7 to 9 p.m. area residents can see evidence of how Shawsheen keeps up with current technology to train students to meet the needs of industry, as well as "cruise the network" of opportunities offered by the 230 vocational-technical programs and academic classes at the school.

In the library/media center both students and their parents can get on the recently installed Shawsheen Internet to learn a little about the information possibilities Tech students will have available for research, reports and communication with other student groups. In the school's newest technical program, Telecommunications, students will show visitors what e-mail is all about.

"We not only now offer Internet access here, but our 20 vocational-technical programs present students with opportunities to access information on educational and career choices," says Charles Lyons, superintendent - director. "We invite you to speak with our staff and evaluate our programs so you can make an informed decision about the appropriate choice for high school."

Members of the Social Studies department will offer a multi-media presentation, one result of teacher training in this field at UMass, Lowell. Shawsheen teachers began instruction in this area two years ago and all members of the department have at least one year of training. This is the second year teachers have been using multi-media for effective classroom instruction.

Assessing writing skills, as mandated by Education Reform, is another area where Shawsheen is using technology to make the job more feasible. The job has been completed for ninth graders; the goal is to complete portfolio assessments for the entire school. Evidence of this work will also be in display.

New equipment will be in evidence as visitors cruise the Shawsheen network of opportunities. A new, state of the art frame straightening machine is in place in the auto body department; in technical illustration/commercial design and graphic arts, students can show visitors how the new digital camera works and how a negative ready for printing can be produced more quickly using this new imaging equipment.

Seventh and eighth graders

Seventh and eighth grade students and their parents from the district are especially invited; other interested residents are also welcome. There will be special drawings throughout the evening just for eighth graders who will receive Tech hats and t-shirts.

Everyone who attends the open house can register for door prizes which include: a day of beauty in the student operated cosmetology salon; a holiday bakery package from culinary; writing paper and business cards from graphic arts and an oil change from automotive

In both academic classrooms and vocational technical areas, school staff and students will show the relaxed mix of academics and hands on education. All 20 vocational and technical education programs will have displays and demonstrations.

Open House begins with an overview in the school cafeteria that will summarize school philosophy, schedule and academic, vocational and extracurricular options. Visitors can pick up school maps for a self guided tour, or request a student guide.

Nat'l honor society

Wednesday, Sept. 27, Tewksbury Memorial High School's National Honor Society (NHS) honored the new principal, William McGuirk, with a morning reception. The 28 NHS students wished to welcome him personally, despite the early hour, a large number of staff and NHS students attended.

Under the guidance of Advisor Carol Acone, NHS tutoring is already underway for President Gloria King reports that the group will be continuing community service projects throughout the year. Plans include a coat drive, a canned goods drive and Sun Santa donations.

FORGET THE GARAGE SALE

So you've cleaned out the basement and the attic and found lots of stuff you don't need, so you're planning a garage sale to turn it into cash. Forget the garage sale; there's a better way. Instead of selling your used clothing and household items at giveaway prices, give them away to a charity and get more.

The charity makes use of your belongings and you get a tax deduction, if you do it right.

That means you must document your deduction with a detailed list of donated items and get a receipt for the gift. If the total value is more than $250, you'll need a written acknowledgement from the charity including a description.

The law also requires a reasonable valuation for donated property. Household goods can generally be deducted at 20 to 35 percent of original cost, depending on condition and age. To avoid tax challenges later, get an independent appraisal for donated items such as art work or antiques with a value of $5,000 or more.

You'll get good tax saving advice from the professionals at

40 years of a Great Roar

by Bill Conlon

Tewksbury Lions Club celebrates its 40th anniversary this year, but the group is part of a much larger, much older organization.

The Lions Club began from an earlier group, the Business Circle of Chicago, a local business club founded by Melvin Jones. At a 1917 organizational meeting held at the LaSalle Hotel in Chicago, the Circle adopted the name of one of the member clubs -- the Association of Lions Club, and a seed was planted.

Three years later, in 1920, a club was started in Canada, making the Lions Clubs truly international. From that humble beginning came the worldwide organization known today as Lions Clubs International.

Lions Clubs are now found in 180 countries, with nearly 1.4 million members. Lions who visit other countries are welcome at meetings in nearly every corner of the globe.

A watershed event in the history of Lions Clubs came in 1925, at the group's international convention in Cedar Point, Ohio. Guest speaker Helen Keller challenged the Lions to become "knights of the blind in the crusade against darkness," and the Lions accepted her call.

Today, Lions Clubs International is known worldwide for their fund-raising and efforts on behalf of eye research and treatment. Lions Club District 33-N, which includes the Tewksbury club, consistently leads the rest of the state in donations to the Massachusetts Lions Eye Research Foundation, Inc.

Some of the most important eye ailment treatments now in use can be traced back to research funded by Lions Clubs International, such as laser cataract surgery. Locally, Lions Clubs collect used eyeglasses for worldwide distribution, offer free eye treatments in many cases, and the Lions Club Eye Screening van is a common sight at outdoor events.

Matters of the eye are not all that Lions Clubs support. Tewksbury's club made sizeable donations to the Officer B.R.A.D. robot, and to the fire chief's drive to raise funds for defibrillator machines.

The Tewksbury Lions Club meets two nights a month, and recently moved their meeting location from the Holiday Inn to the U.S. Bunting Club on Whipple Road in Lowell.

A meeting involves a fellowship hour, followed by a meal catered by Sona's Catering of Tewksbury, a guest speaker, and the antics of the Tail Twister, whose task is to keep a meeting from becoming dull.

The Tail Twister has permission to collect fines, for any reason that can be dreamed up. At any point in the meeting, the sound of a whistle means the Tail Twister has found a new victim, and the assembly turns to enjoy the show. Arriving late to a meeting, or talking aloud while the Tail Twister is making his rounds, are almost certain to draw fines. Luckily, fines are not large. Dan Linehan is the Tewksbury club's Tail Twister this year.

Frank Criscitello is the current president of the Tewksbury Lions Club, but presidents and other top officers only serve for one year. Other club duties belong to the secretary, the vice presidents, the treasurer, the bulletin editor and a list of other posts. All serving in club offices are volunteers.

One tradition among Lions Clubs is that of larceny. When two clubs meet, it is nearly certain that one club will at least attempt to steal the other club's banner or bell. A club officer known as the Lion Tamer is charged with maintaining the club's property, but the lions being tamed most often belong to other clubs.

Stolen items are ransomed back to their owners, all in good fun, with the funds donated to a worthwhile charity. Legends have arisen over the elaborate efforts made to steal another club's banner or bell, such as hiding the booty in the ceiling or wearing bulky clothes for the sole purpose of hiding the loot.

Guests are always welcome at the Tewksbury Lions Club, and guests are allowed to visit twice, for free. After that, membership will come up for discussion. Members of any profession may join the Lions.

While formerly an all-men's club the Lions now accept women as full members. Some clubs, in fact, have all-female membership!

It's NOT Us Versus Them

by Bill Conlon

Tewksbury residents entered onto some dangerous ground on Tuesday night, at the Special Town Meeting.

When discussion turned to Article 7, which sought to have the town pick up trash at the town's condominium developments, debate became heated.

One chilling aspect of the debate was never put formally into words, but it was felt nonetheless. Those of us at the press table caught a distinct hint of "Us Versus Them," and "the Townies versus the Condo Dwellers" in the debate. Dangerous ground, Tewksbury. Dangerous indeed.

There is nothing whatsoever to suggest that people who live in condos are the least bit different. Nothing. They pay taxes, their kids are in school, and they're every bit as loyal to the town as everyone else. To even suggest that people in condominiums are the slightest bit different from people living in single family homes is divisive and pointless, and pure poison.

Former Selectman Bill Hurton only made the situation worse with his correction of a previous speaker's pronunciation of "Tewksbury." Bill, it doesn't matter, and your correction of the way he pronounced the name of the town sounded like an attempt to dump gasoline on a campfire. Whether the town name begins with "Took" or "Two-k" is meaningless and minor. Just call the place "T-Town" and maybe nobody will be "wrong."

This world faces too many divisions now. People are being slaughtered, in Bosnia and other troublespots, for differences so petty that the rest of the world simply can't understand. Rather than getting along, sharing their commonality, people are using any wedge they can find to blow the human race into millions of sharp-edged splinters.

Condo or subdivision or boardinghouse, or homeless, who gives a damn?

What next? Mandatory tattoos for condo dwellers? Town ID cards? Don't go there, Tewksbury.

Letters to the editor

Intelligence and morality

Dear Larz:

I have just completed reading Jamie Pote's editorial about the football team in the Oct. 4 edition of the Town Crier. Nothing that he has written has shocked me one bit. As a recent graduate, I am going to tell what I have seen in the past four years regarding the football team.

My freshman year ('91-'92), the football team didn't have an outstanding record; in fact, it was 2-7-0. Magically, they pulled off a Thanksgiving victory against Tewksbury.

Whatever previously made bad press or negative comments were instantly erased. People were saying how great the coaches were, how outstanding the players were, and what a great school WHS was.

Sophomore year was the most controversial of all: the hazing incident. This incident brought statewide attention to the "little school on Church Street." Parents were exclaiming, "Oh, not my son!"

Hazing, supposedly, is against the law and can result in a large fine and/or a jail term. Funny, none of those football players ended up with either punishment. I believe they were suspended for a couple of days of school and a couple of football games. Ooh, how harsh!

The team's record was approximately the same as the previous year except this year their losses were blamed on how emotionally distraught the players were because of all the negative publicity.

My junior year, Gerry Sullivan came to the school as the new head coach of the football team. He had to try to come in and clean up the mess of the last year's turmoil. I give this man nothing but credit. He came in with an attitude of hope and optimism for the team and tried to get them to work together.

My senior year was WHS' last year in the MVC. The team, which was fairly young, had, I believe, a 1-9-0 record. This year all of the comments from the players were, "Oh, woo is me. Thank god we're moving to the Cape Ann League because we're being crushed by the MVC."

Now, all that I've said so far is obvious to anyone who has been following the team. What isn't obvious is the behavior of the majority of these players off the field.

Throughout high school, I have always been looked down upon by the football players. I have been made fun of, spit on, and booed at. They've always walked around the school with the mentality that they are better than anyone else. Anyone that doesn't conform to their opinions, behaviors, or beliefs is walked all over.

What shocks me the most is that these people that I have just described have the gall to complain that there is no school spirit for the team. I wonder why? Let's start with a recent example.

Supposedly, during the first couple weeks of school, the football team decided that it would be intelligent to egg their own field hockey team. I can't justify this mentality with any logical reason. The only thing that I can come up with is that they were self-conscious that the field hockey team has always had a better record than they have and that these girls could outrun them even on their worst day. That's just a guess.

Just with this example, why does the football team expect there to be school spirit for them when they obviously show no respect for other teams within the school?

This has nothing to do with Jamie Pote, Gerry Sullivan or anyone else in the community. I firmly believe that the problem is with the parents of these players. They seem to condone their sons' behavior or dismiss everything off with the statement that "boys will be boys" just like they did with the hazing.

If parents taught their kids how to respect others, the field hockey team would never have gotten egged and others would never have gotten booed or spit on.

The mentality of some of these players speaks through their parents. One parent stood up at this meeting and said that she was going to get her kid to beat up Jamie Pote for writing bad things about the football team. Intelligence and morality are just shining through you, lady.

If the community would sit back and look at all the pieces, they would realize that the only people who can determine a football game are its players.

All the MVC giants, like Central and Chelmsford, have post-season weight lifting schedules, attend non-scholastic football camps together, or join the track team to maintain their stamina. They work very hard to maintain their record and images. They don't expect to snap their fingers to get a victory like Wilmington does. Nothing can ever be achieved without hard work and sacrifice.

Kudos to both Gerry Sullivan and Jamie Pote for a job well done.

Happy 95th to a 'Wilmington-style gal'

Dear Larz:

Through you, I would like to extend by heartfelt wishes for a happy 95th birthday to Jennie B. Arbo.

Dear Mother Jen:

Because you have called Wilmington home for nearly 70 years, it seems appropriate in honor of your 95th birthday on October 25, to ask the Town Crier to announce your special day.

Through life's seasons, you have been a secure mountain for your family and friends.

Like the seasons, your five children have always called you by a different name: Mother, Mom, Mama, Ma. Perhaps it is because of the way you brought us up as distinct individuals, allowing us to grow in our own uniqueness.

Sometimes you watched us grow like the delicate green of early spring. Other times we were like snow flakes swirling eagerly from the sky. Always, as you taught us to do, we slowed down long enough to listen to summer's robin singing at the edge of the pine grove before marching up the steps with New England's crimson autumn.

Along life's pathway, like a blaze of sunlight, your love and your reciting to us memorized poems, have lit our way.

It was on the roads of Wilmington you taught us to walk, skip rope, ride bikes, attend school, pick blueberries, drive a car, watch a parade, make our way to the voting booth and go to church.

How many times did you drive Roger and me along West Street on stormy nights to deliver the Lowell Sun? How many times did you and Norman travel the roads of home to deliver eggs?

My, how those eggs brought you and Dad through the Great Depression years. How hard you both worked to make ends meet financially in order to create a home.

How brave you were as a young woman to drive our 1935 Ford all over New England, especially into Boston. You drove not only for our family, but for many others who needed transportation despite the rationing of gas.

Your life, like the ceaseless ebb and flow of the tide where we used to dig for clams, has always been ever moving - with moments of exhilaration and moments of grief touching your heart. Such as when you watched Dad slowly but surely weaken until he died in 1960.

Then there was the dark night when Eddie, your grandson, lost control of his motorcycle and spent his last moments cradled in a fragrant lilac bush along Woburn Street.

All these years you have traveled and watched the changes come to the familiar roads of home. It is any wonder you now ponder whether or not to keep driving even with your excellent record?

"Who will take my friends to church or to buy groceries?" you ask in your ponderings, always thinking of others. "How will we see the first daffodils of spring or the waves breaking on the rocks, or get to the Senior Center?

Whatever your decision, I will be proud of you. When that day arrives, I know God will place His warm hand in the hollow of your hand where you used to hold the car keys.

I admire your perseverance in pain, your determination to stay independent and your thoughtfullness of others, not only at First Baptist Church, but wherever you happen to be living out each day.

More than anything, I admire your faith in the Lord - your secret to a happy, fulfilled life.

Let the Town Crier shout it from the rooftops: Happy Birthday to a young-at-heart, 95 year-old, Wilmington style gal.

With love,
Your daughter,
Audrey in Birdsboro, PA.

'It was wonderful....'

Dear Larz:

On behalf of the American Cancer Society, I want to thank everyone from the Greater Lowell area who participated as a walker or a donor for the Making Strides Against Cancer walk on Sept. 24 in Boston.

It was wonderful to be one of the more than 15,000 people from across the state who walked at this event, bringing us within reach of our $1.5 million goal! Every dollar raised will fund American Cancer Society programs of breast cancer research, education and detection, and patient services.

Our work on Making Strides is not yet finished, though. We encourage anyone who walked to collect any outstanding pledges as soon as possible, and send them to the American Cancer Society at 14 Loon Hill Rd., Dracut, MA 01826.

Those people who were unable to join us in Boston should send along any pledges collected, too. Anyone wishing to contribute to the fight against breast cancer may do so by contacting the American Cancer Society.

The determination and spirit of all of the Making Strides Against Breast Cancer walkers have brought us closer than ever to eliminating this disease. Everyone should be proud of our community's generous support for the fight against breast cancer!

Sincerely,
Margo Tisdale
Key Unit Strides Chairperson

Towne Line Billiards • 885 Main St., Tewksbury • 851-0422

Pool is fast becoming America's favorite indoor sport. Towne Line Billiards (located behind Deli King in Tewksbury) is the place to learn. It's a family run business with emphasis on being family oriented. They are open afternoon and evenings with specials for early birds. If you can take an afternoon off, or even a couple of hours you can play for only $5.00 per person from 12:30 to 6:00. They have a couple dozen tables so you can be assured of playing. It's a great way to sharpen your skills.

If you are interested in learning the fine points come in the evenings. There are always plenty of good shooters around. Striking up a conversation or a game with one of them is easy. They are there to have fun and share that fun with others. A game or two with a better shooter will sharpen your skills.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings is bargain time. You can play from 6 p.m. until closing for only $6 per person. The friendly atmosphere and the pleasant surroundings are maintained at all times. Profanity is not allowed. Only soft drinks are allowed and the noise is kept to a minimum.

If you're a C or D class player you'll be interested in the tournaments run on Monday and Tuesday evenings. Mondays it's 8 Ball Tuesdays its 9 Ball. The entry fee is only $16. and includes pool time from 6 to 11 p.m. The tournaments start at 7:30. Prizes start at $100. (Call for further details.)

On a quiet day, two of the regulars enjoyed an afternoon of friendly competition, for only $5 a piece. Ed Peters prepared to put one in the corner as Garin Worth politely watches on.

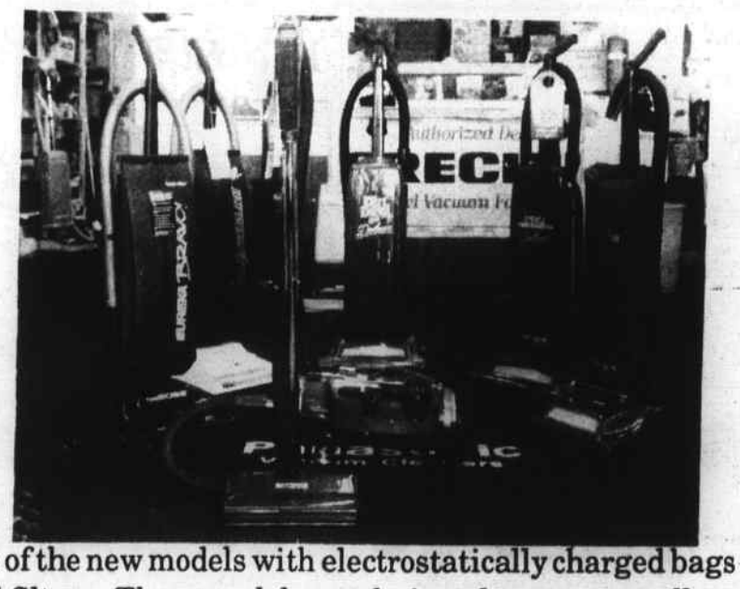

On Wednesday and Thursday evenings they run 8-Ball Leagues. And soon they plan to run junior leagues in the afternoon for players aged 12 - 16 years.

They are open seven days a week. Sunday thru Thursday 12:30 to 11 p.m., Friday and Saturday 12:30 to midnight.

Wilmington Vacuum Cleaners - conveniently located at Colonial Park Mall

"If I sell something, I fix it!" says Jim MacDonald, owner of Wilmington Vacuum Cleaners. What's that... you didn't buy your vacuum from him? Bring it in anyway. Jim works on all makes and models, with an average turnaround time of 2-4 days for parts or repairs.

Looking for a new machine? Wilmington Vacuum Cleaners sells Royal, Eureka, Oreck, Hoover, Panasonic, and Sanitaire models, as well as their parts and supplies. Prices range from $29 for a carpet sweeper, to about $500 for the top of their Royal line. Jim says that upright models are the most popular right now, but he also has several canister styles to choose from. The shop will take trade-ins on certain models, and also sells used machines.

Suffering from springtime allergies? Why not try one of the new models with electrostatically charged bags and filters. These models are designed to remove pollen, dust, and even dust mites from the vacuum exhaust. The Royal model claims to remove particles as small as one micron in size!

Wilmington Vacuum Cleaners is located at 35 Lowell St., in the Colonial Park Mall. They're open Monday thru Friday: 8:30 - 5:30; and Saturday: 8:30 - 4. Gift certificates are available and they offer free layaway.

Marvin Adds Cladding To The Industry's Most Innovative Sliding Patio Door

French Door Sets New Standards For Quality, Low Maintenance, And Theft Prevention

The industry's most innovative and beautiful sliding patio door is now clad with extruded aluminum to make it low maintenance. Marvin's Clad Sliding French Door offers the appearance and quality features of a swinging French door in a secure and smooth-operating slider. The new clad option offers the look of wood without the maintenance, featuring a high-performance finish that retains its color and gloss even in the most extreme elements.

Marvin's state of the art Sliding French Door sets new standards for quality. Now available with extruded aluminum cladding, it also sets new standards for low maintenance in wood sliding patio doors.

Marvin's extruded aluminum cladding is durable and long lasting, measurably thicker and stronger than thin roll-form aluminum or vinyl cladding. Coated with Marvin's high performance finish, it has the appearance of wood but requires none of the upkeep.

The Marvin Sliding French Door features the elegant styling of a classic French door, with its wide, 4-3/4" stiles and top rails and 8-1/8" wide bottom rails. Attention to detail is evident in the revealed profiles and smooth, clear interior wood surfaces. Distinctive solid brass hardware adds to the aesthetic appeal.

Ideal for space situations that aren't practical for a swinging door, Marvin's sliding version incorporates advanced engineering to surpass other sliding doors on the market.

Industry firsts with this product include the most secure locking system available on a sliding patio door. The triple point locking system withstands up to 1,200 pounds of force, making the door impossible to open without a key.

Marvin's Sliding French Door incorporates a virtually indestructable sill made of Ultrex™, a composite material that won't warp, bend, rot, or corrode. Ultrex stands up to moisture and temperature extremes, greatly increasing thermal efficiency because it's non-conductive.

The door's top hung screen design, another Marvin first, virtually eliminates the problem of flimsy screens sticking or coming out of their tracks. The Sliding French's heavy gauge screen is hung from a track along the top of the door, away from dirt and debris. The design includes sealed ball bearing wheels that allow the screen to glide effortlessly in its top-hung tracks for smooth, reliable operation.

The Sliding French can be ordered in a wide selection of standard sizes including two-wide, three-wide, and four-wide configurations with continuous headers and sills. Height options include one for replacement projects along with standard 6/8 and 8/0 heights.

Beware The Seven Common Errors Of Wood- Based Siding Application

Wood composite siding and other wood-based siding materials have been used extensively for residential construction throughout the United States for decades. Wood products represent affordable cladding material that has allowed the price of homes to be within reach of many market segments. When these products are properly installed and finished by a qualified builder or installer, and receive normal homeowner maintenance, they will perform as designed and look great for many years.

Many reported problems concerning wood-based siding are not caused by the product itself, but can be traced to Seven Common Errors of Wood-Based Siding Application. By avoiding these pitfalls, builders and installers can prevent costly call backs, homeowner complaints and wasted time.

Builders and siding installers can avoid the Seven Common Errors of Wood-Based Siding Application by following manufacturer's installation guidelines and paying special attention to these areas:

1. Flashing–Properly installing simple metal flashing over windows, doors and other horizontal surfaces prevents water from penetrating the exterior wall of the home.

2. Caulking–All gaps around doors, windows and other wall openings should be filled with a long-life caulk as a barrier against water entry.
3. Painting–Two coats of high quality, low- or no-chalking acrylic latex paint will protect the siding from the weather. It is particularly important that paint is properly applied to the bottom edge as well as the face of the siding.
4. Roof/Wall Detail–A two-inch clearance should be left between the roof and siding where the roof abuts a vertical wall, and the gap should be flashed to divert rain water.
5. Concrete Contact–An air space or vapor retardant membrane must be kept between wood or wood composite siding and masonry to prevent deterioration of the siding. Siding must not come in direct contact with masonry.
6. Grade Clearance–Maintaining a minimum six-inch clearance between the siding and finished landscape grade, will protect the siding.
7. Rain Gutters–According to HUD Minimum Property Standards, rain gutters must be installed on any single story home with less than 12 inch overhang.

These installation guidelines must be followed up by periodic homeowner maintenance. Masonite Building Products Group has developed a booklet covering homeowner maintenance. To receive your copy, write to: Siding Care Kit, c/o Masonite Customer Service, Department F, P.O. Box 4032, Monroe, Louisiana 71211.

Kids Can't Fly... Window Safety Tips

Window Safety Tips

Develop a family emergency plan to make sure family members know how to escape through any code-required emergency exit window or accessory.

You must be able to open windows in an emergency. Do not paint, nail or weatherstrip them shut.

Do not remove cranks from casement and awning windows unless your know they will not be needed for an emergency exit. Cap the exposed studs with covers available from the manufacturer.

Keep children's roughhousing away from windows and patio doors. Falling through a window could cause serious injury or prove fatal.

Consult your local police and fire departments regarding home safety awareness and security tips.

Learn to recognize hazards and prevent injuries. What looks "normal" to an adult may be deadly to a child.

Whenever small children are around, close and lock windows. If you need ventilation, open the windows that are out of the reach of children.

Do not place furniture near windows. Children with their boundless energy, love to jump on beds and climb on furniture and they can quickly reach window ledges or sills and fall.

Keep window treatments (blinds, cords, drapes, etc.) out of children's reach. They may injure themselves when climbing or be strangled.

Ailing Lawns Might Need New Start

As nature runs it course, many lawns become thin, ugly and choked with weeds. When routine maintenance no longer provides a healthy, good-looking lawn, it might be time for a fresh start.

A complete renovation of the weak, unhealthy lawn might be in order. This requires eliminating the existing grass and weeds, applying any necessary soil nutrients and either laying sod or seeding. A renovation might be the only sure way to rebuild a strong, attractive lawn, and it is a relatively low-cost investment that can more than pay for itself in a short time.

Consider the benefits:

- A healthy lawn that stands up to wear and has greater aesthetic value to the homeowner.
- Homes with great-looking lawns sell for more. This begins with what realtors call "curb appeal." Prospective buyers will stop for a look at a home with a good lawn, while sickly, patchy grass prompts buyers to drive on to the next home on the market.
- The cost of lawn renovation is considered home maintenance and in many cases might be a tax advantage when the home is sold.

A renovation begins by determining what's ailing the grass. The possibilities are many — and common.

A so-called "hard pan," a layer of compressed soil too solid to allow proper root growth, could be the culprit. Or the soil might have become too acidic or too alkaline over time. An irrigation problem might be to blame, or too much shade. Perhaps the wrong type of grass for the location was planted in the first place, or small but destructive bugs could be waging a turf war on the property.

Renovation An Option

Finding the source of the lawn problem doesn't have to be costly. Soil samples and a clump of grass can be taken to the turf specialist at the nearest Cooperative Extension Service office. The specialist can identify the species of grass and whether it's right for the local climate. The soil will be tested to determine what additives, if any, need to be spread on the lawn to improve its condition.

Easy Solutions To Attic Ventilation Problems

Most homeowners don't even consider the issue of attic ventilation until problems arise.

"It's unfortunate because installing an effective attic ventilation system is really quite easy to do," said Marianne Horvat, director of marketing, CertainTeed Ventilation, Dallas, a leading manufacturer of home ventilation products. "Turbine wind vents and power attic ventilators are two simple solutions for solving attic ventilation problems."

Sure signs that it may be time to increase attic ventilation include excessive heat in the attic, warped floor boards, mold and mildew on stored items and higher heating and cooling costs, according to Horvat.

A poorly ventilated attic will trap heat and moisture in the attic which can lead to damaged shingles and other roof structures. When your attic is too hot, your air conditioner will run longer. Excessive moisture can make your attic insulation soggy and reduce its energy efficiency.

"A well-ventilated attic requires continuous air circulation, exchanging over-heated and moist air with fresh, cooler air from outside," said Horvat. "While most homes are equipped with some form of attic ventilation, the existing system may not provide enough air exchange to work effectively."

An adequate ventilation system is just as important in winter as it is for summer months, according to Horvat. During the winter a warm roof can cause the formation of ice dams, a common problem in the Snowbelt region. Ice dams occur when heat from the attic combined with heat from the sun melt snow on the roof and the resultant water flows down the roof and refreezes at the eaves. This ice build-up can distort gutters and settle under roof shingles, causing damage. As the ice begins to melt, water can leak behind wall cavities resulting in damage to ceilings and walls.

Horvat suggests you evaluate your current ventilation system by inspecting your attic carefully. Make sure the attic temperature is cool and any existing vents are working properly. "If your home has a turbine vent, and it's not spinning freely, you should replace it," said Horvat. "Turbine vents are inexpensive, readily available in most home centers and can be installed easily by a do-it-yourselfer." CertainTeed Ventilation's Turbine Aire ™ wind turbines have a patented thrust-bearing system for free-spinning, long-life operation.

If a higher air exchange rate is needed, or to provide ventilation on days with little breeze, Horvat recommends installing a power attic ventilator. "These powered systems are quite effective in increasing the comfort level of your home and prolonging the life of your roof," said Horvat.

CertainTeed Ventilation offers a variety of power attic ventilators which feature a pre-wired, adjustable automatic thermostat that monitors the temperature in the attic and automatically turns the fan on when necessary.

According to Horvat, there are basically two categories of power attic ventilators: roof mount and gable mount. Roof mounts can be used to replace existing non-power turbines and roof pots or can be easily installed by cutting a small hole in your roof. To keep the roof line clean and aesthetically pleasing, roof mounts with low profile domes are typically placed on the roof face slanting away from the home.

If your home has existing gable vents, you can easily upgrade this ventilation system with a gable mounted power ventilator, according to Horvat.

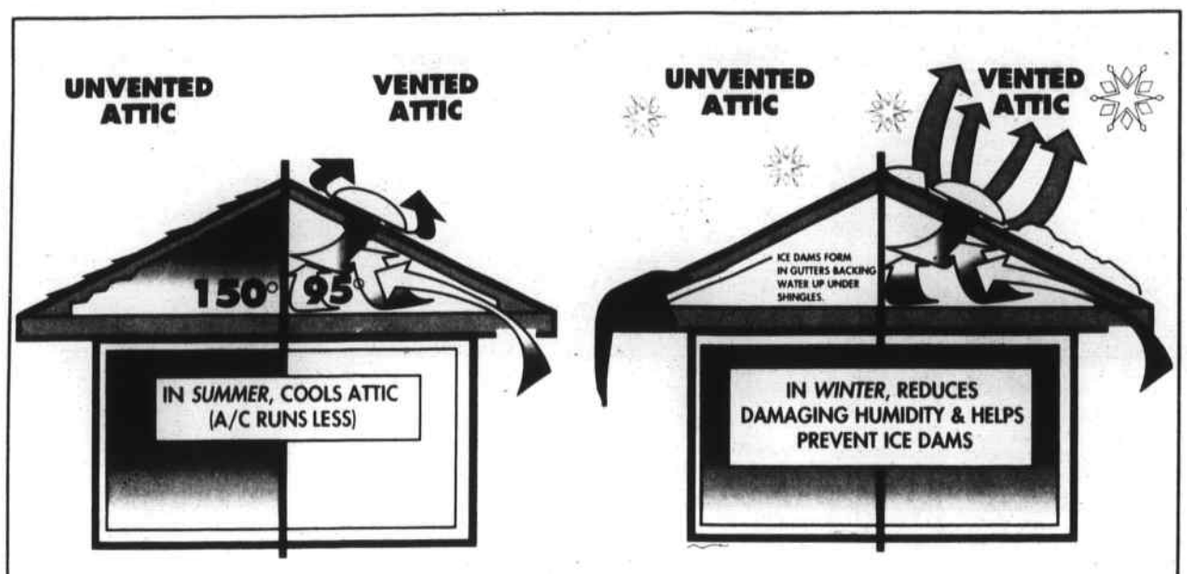

A gable mount is positioned behind a louvered shutter and to be most effective, should be installed on the downwind side of your home.

For moisture control, CertainTeed Ventilation's Attic Aire All Season™ power attic ventilator features a combination humidistat/thermostat control, according to Horvat. When the relative humidity reaches a pre-set number, the humidistat automatically turns the fan on. This setting can be adjusted from 20 to 80 percent relative humidity. "This helps protect attics from moisture damage year-round," said Horvat.

Another crucial element to attic ventilation is providing a sufficient inlet for air. To increase air exchange, you should consider adding soffit vents as you update your exhaust ventilation system, according to Horvat. "Remember, attic ventilators provide exhaust, but they can't work effectively without fresh air intake. Most older homes – 10 years and up – have insufficient intake vents."

CertainTeed Ventilation products, including wind turbines, power attic ventilators and under-eave vents, are available at leading home centers and building supply retailers nationwide.

For more information on CertainTeed Ventilation products write to: CertainTeed Ventilation, 3000 West Commerce Street, Dallas, Texas 75212; or call 800 527 1924.

A poorly ventilated attic will trap heat and moisture in the attic which can lead to damaged shingles and roof structures, higher heating and cooling costs and mold and mildew on stored items. A simple solution is to install CertainTeed Ventilation's Turbine Aire™wind turbines or Attic Aire All Season™ power attic ventilators, available at leading home centers and building supply retailers.

Electric Water Heater Timers Cut Electric Bills

Leaving your lights on all day when you're not at home wastes precious energy, so why would you do the same with your electric water heater? Yet that's exactly what the majority of homeowners with electric water heaters do.

Many homeowners are surprised to learn that an electric water heater consumes more energy than just about any other home appliance. Even if your electricity rates are relatively low, your water-heating costs can be substantial.

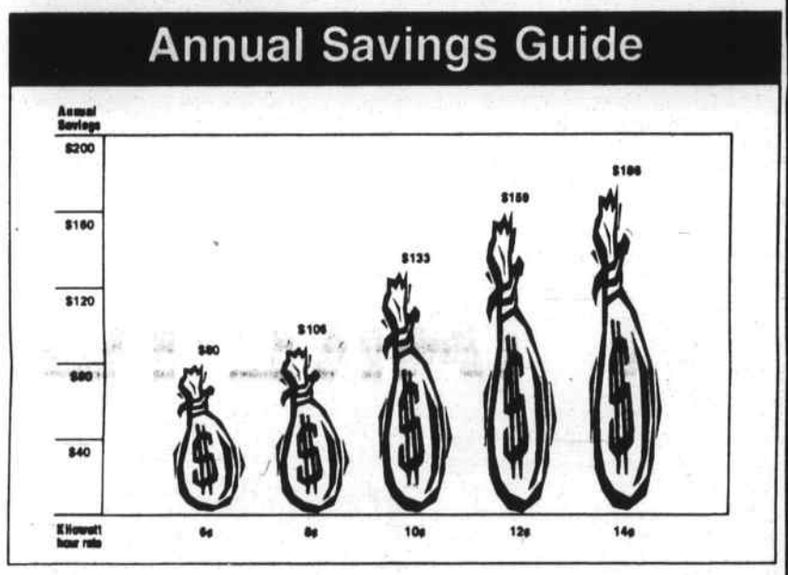

A recent study conducted by Illinois Institute of Technology (IIT) confirms that there's an easy way for homeowners with electric water heaters to slash their water-heating bills. The solution is found in a relatively inexpensive device called an electric water heater timer.

Based on the test results, a typical household can save up to 26% on its annual water heating costs. In a household paying 8¢ per kilowatt hour (about the national average), the 26% energy cost reduction translates to an estimated annual savings of $106. Besides the local utility rate, other key factors affecting the actual savings are the household's water usage and the water temperature setting.

"Conventional water heaters are set to maintain a consistent water temperature throughout the day," says Bruce Oellerich of Intermatic Inc., a manufacturer of energy control products. "When the temperature drops below a pre-set value, the electricity turns on and energy is supplied to the water until the desired temperature is regained. However, households generally need hot water only during certain time periods."

The key to reducing electric water heater usage is matching the hot water supply to these heavy-use periods, such as morning showers and evening dish washing. A water heater timer achieves this objective by letting users select the time periods when hot water is available, such as from 6 a.m. to 8 a.m. and 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Intermatic offers a wide variety of electric water heater timers, including two new digital models. Most of its units can be programmed for up to 12 on/off operations daily, and some have an external override switch that allows homeowners to schedule more hot water if it's needed.

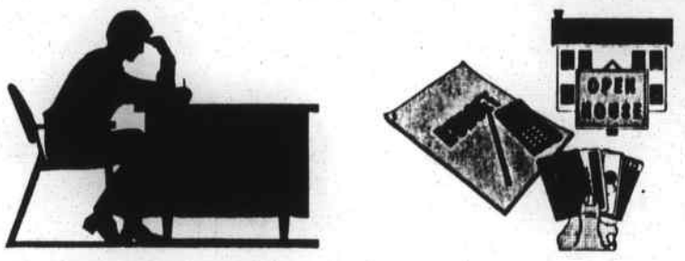

An Intermatic electric water heater timer can save homeowners up to 26% on their water-heating costs.

Electric water heater timers are available through hardware stores, home centers and electrical contractors.

"An electric water heater timer lets users stop spending money heating water unnecessarily," says Oellerich. "These days, who can afford to waste any of their hard-earned money?"

To obtain free information on the many electric water heater timer choices available, request Forms 300WH10001 and 300EH10001 from: Intermatic Inc., Intermatic Plaza, Spring Grove, IL 60081.

Falling For The Wrong Ladder

You're in the process of getting all the tools and materials you need to complete the job. Then you discover that in addition to everything else, you need a ladder.

So off you go to your favorite hardware or building supply store to buy one. When you get to the store, you're amazed at how many sizes and styles are on display in the ladder aisle. Which one do you buy? A ladder is a ladder, right? WRONG!

Having the right ladder for the job is the key to safely completing your task. Using the wrong ladder is extremely hazardous. When you choose the wrong ladder or use it improperly, the result may be serious injury or death.

So while you're standing in the aisle looking at all the choices you have, ask yourself these questions:

- Will the ladder be used indoors, outdoors, or both?
- What's the highest level you'll need to reach?
- What tasks will you be doing on the ladder?
- Including your tools and material, how much weight will be on the ladder?
- Is there even a remote chance that the ladder will come into contact with electricity or electrical wires?

Style

If you'll be using the ladder indoors only, a step stool, a stepladder, a platform or a multi-purpose ladder (one which folds into several positions) is usually recommended. If the ladder will be used outside only, a taller stepladder, a multi-purpose ladder, or an extension ladder will be more appropriate.

Size

Selecting the correct size ladder is based on the highest level you'll need to reach. One of the more common (and more dangerous) mistakes is using a ladder that is either too long or too short for the task at hand. For example, many homeowners purchase extension ladders that are too short to safely use for cleaning the gutters or painting the outside of the house. They end up reaching up or leaning out too far, both potentially very dangerous.

Extension ladders should be 7 to 10 feet longer than the highest support or contact point, which may be the wall or roof line. For a one story home, a 20' or a 24' extension ladder is normally best. This will allow enough length for proper set-up, overlap of ladder sections, height restrictions of the highest standing level, and where appropriate, the extension of the ladder above the roof line. The highest standing level is four rungs down from the top. Never stand on the ladder above the support points or roof line. For two-story homes, 28' or 32' models are usually required depending on whether you need to reach windows, gutters, or the peak.

For stepladders, the highest standing level is two steps from the top.

Rocco calls for change in liquor rules

by Jeff Nazzaro

The man largely responsible for bringing alcohol sales back into the Town of Wilmington in 1972 after a 26-year "dry-spell" was back before the board of selectmen Tuesday night in an effort to reinstate bar service in town.

The board voted unanimously to table a request from local restaurateur Rocco DePasquale - whose family has operated Rocco's Restaurant, on Main Street, since 1940 - to change two provisions of the town's restaurant liquor license regulations. Rocco asked that provisions two and six of the rules and regulations, drafted in 1972 by selectmen, be stricken.

Provision two states that "No person shall be served from a bar...." and provision six calls for a restaurant serving alcohol to "...offer by published menu and make available ... not less than three main dinners consisting of entrees prepared from a choice of fish or unground meat but excluding sandwiches or other fast foods, so-called."

Rocco told the board he wishes to offer bar service similar to that found in chain pub restaurants such as 99 and Applebee's.

He said the current regulations hinder the larger restaurants in town, including Stelio's and Royal Dynasty, because they "restrict the segment of the population that we should be focusing on" - namely the prospective customers who want to sit at a bar, have a drink and order a sandwich or appetizers.

Rocco said many would-be patrons enter Rocco's Restaurant intending to do just that, only to leave when offered a table and full waitress service as their only alternative.

Rocco's second suggestion, the elimination of the "three main dinners" provision, was made, he said, because "eating habits have changed.

"To be forced to have a full menu available after 9:00 is an additional burden and expense," he said, adding that his patrons generally do not order full meals that late at night. Rocco pointed to the popularity of what he called "grazing foods" - appetizers such as mozzarella sticks and nachos as well as sandwiches.

With Selectman Robert Cain absent Monday night, Rocco's requests were supported only by Selectman Jim Rooney.

"If [changing the regulations is] what it takes for you to stay in business," he told Rocco, "I think we should give you your due attention."

But Selectman Michael McCoy said he didn't think the board had the authority to change the liquor rules and regulations, adding that "personally, I am against having bars opening up in Wilmington.

"We're going to put essentially bars in restaurants," he said. "I don't think that's the right thing for a family atmosphere.... You're going to have a bar, that's what it's going to be."

Selectman Dan Wandell voiced similar concerns.

"I'm afraid that this could have an adverse impact on the quality of life in Wilmington," he said.

Wandell said that he believes the board could change the rules but that he would want two steps in place before any action was taken: a public hearing and a non-binding, town-wide ballot referendum.

Allan gave an enthusiastic nod to the public hearing suggestion before directing Town Manager Michael Caira to solicit a report from Town Counsel Alan Altman as to whether or not the board could change the regulations without public input.

"Get some public input," Allan stated. "That's my strongest point."

For his part, Rocco said he didn't object to a public hearing, but called it a "copout" by the board. Rocco said Wednesday that the board knew of his request as early as three weeks ago and had plenty of time to determine whether or not it could act to change the regulations.

He also directed a comment to McCoy and Wandell, who sit next to each other on the board: "I can take personal affronts to the comments made on this side of the board," he said. "I think [Rocco's Restaurant has] earned the respect of the people of Wilmington."

Rooney added that the current liquor regulations are probably causing large chain restaurants to locate in places other than Wilmington.

"Why can't these places come to Wilmington? Unless we do something like [change the regulations], they won't come here, they can't come here," Rooney said.

Allan ended the discussion by stating "I think we need to get some answers," and the board voted 4-0 to table the matter pending receipt of those answers. No indication was given as to if or when the matter would be taken up again by the board.

Wilmington gained notoriety in the 1930's and 40's for its raucous bar scene, which included the now infamous Black Cat saloon.

"When I was in the Navy," Wandell said during the meeting, "nobody had ever heard of Wilmington, but everybody knew about the Black Cat."

In 1946 a majority of townspeople voted to make the town "dry," barring alcohol sales.

In 1970, Rocco said, he petitioned the town to rescind the ban but lost an Annual Town Meeting vote by a narrow margin. In 1972, then State Rep. Fred Cain filed legislation that was voted on and passed as a statewide ballot referendum. That bill allowed alcohol to be sold in towns in the state. Shortly thereafter, selectmen drafted the rules and regulations mentioned earlier, with safeguards to prevent the atmosphere found in the '30's and '40's.

But Rocco feels those concerns are outdated.

"It cannot ever be the way it was," he said.

Rocco said he waited the 23 years to challenge the regulations prohibiting bar service because at first he was just happy to have won alcohol sales back. Then, in 1979 he began his first of three consecutive terms as selectmen and, to avoid conflict, he said, did not participate in any licensing issues.

He said enough time has passed since he was a public official and he is losing enough business to restaurants with full bar service in neighboring municipalities like Woburn and Tewksbury that now seemed like the best time to try to change the 1972 regulations.

Rocco said that if he did not get a favorable ruling from the board of selectmen, he would likely appeal to the state Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission and then take his case to Superior Court.

Ryan P. Hoffman, son of Patrick E. and Irene M. Hoffman of Wilmington, accepts congratulations on his election to the Cum Laude Society from Belmont Hill School head of the school, Richard Melvoin.

Letters to the editor

Thank you

Dear Larz:

The Tewksbury Youth Skating Association (TYSA) would like to thank the 20 coaches who completed the eight hour CPR and first aid re-certification training. The course was conducted by New England CPR and First Aid.

Sincerely,
TYSA

Elderly subsidize themselves

Dear Larz:

It was said at a [Tewksbury] town meeting within the past year the elderly get everything.

So what happens? The medical van is taken out of service because of lack of funds. The personal service which the drivers gave the elderly was terrific, always helping people to the medical van who were not able to fend for themselves.

The concern for the elderly was above reproach, instead of the political infighting and egos jumping all over the place. The combatants should divert their attention for help from the State Legislature for this special purpose.

Special interests in this country, like oil companies, steel companies, farming and many, many more are subsidized by the U.S. Senate. The dictionary meaning for subsidize is giving aid, support, service, a grant of money to an enterprise considered of benefit to the public.

Finding money for big business seems right for many but finding money to keep a medical van running seems to be taboo to the interested parties.

While family values are deteriorating in today's world, the elderly are actually the beacon of hope in today's society - the elderly actually subsidize themselves to the family existence. Think of it.

Respectfully yours,
Paul Miele

Thanks a truckload

Dear Larz:

The Wilmington Watershed Cleanup Committee would like to thank all the volunteers and sponsors who made the Second Annual Cleanup a great success.

One hundred twenty residents pitched in to help remove truckloads of debris from Wilmington's wetlands and waterways. The Committee wishes to especially thank corporate sponsores Kelley & Kompany, Northeastern Development, Universe Construction, and K.J. Miller Co.

Thank you,
The Wilmington Watershed

Wilmington to collect grass and leaves at curbside

The Town of Wilmington will be collecting leaves and grass at the curbside during the weeks of October 30, November 6, November 12, November 20 and November 27.

Residents should place their biodegradable paper leaf bags at the curb on the day of your regular trash collection. Allied Cartage, Inc., the town's solid waste and recycling collection contractor, will collect the leaves and grass clippings. They will be taken to the town's recycling drop-off center for composting. Leaves and grass bagged in plastic bags will not be collected at the curb. Only leaves and grass in biodegradable paper bags will be picked up by the contractor. Biodegradable paper bags will reduce the amount of time required to prepare the leaf and grass material for composting.

Residents may also take leaves and grass to the recycling drop-off center on Old Main Street in south Wilmington. The area is open Monday through Thursday from 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and Friday through Sunday from sunrise to sunset. Residents who take lawn material in plastic bags must empty the material in the designated area at the drop-off center and keep the plastic bags. The town can accept only biodegradable paper bags at the drop-off center.

Yard waste such as stumps, branches, brush and logs, will not be picked up at curbside and are not accepted at the drop-off center. Residents may deliver the material to the following vendors who will accept it for a specified price:

1. Brush Control Contractors, 1079 South St., Tewksbury, MA 01876; call 508-667-2171 or 617-273-0398.

2. Kaknes Wood Products and Landscape Supply, Inc., 25 Atlantic Avenue, Woburn, MA 01801; phone 617-933-3818.

Questions may be directed to the Department of Public Works at 658-4481 between 7:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Sons of Italy comedy night

The Wilmington Sons of Italy will sponsor Comedy Nite at the Ballardvale Street Hall, Saturday, Nov. 18. Doors open at 7:30; show starts at 9.

Four comedians from the Comedy Connection will perform. Call 508-657-4141 for more information.

Stone's in the Garden

Not ready for fall clean up yet?

by Jackie Leszczak-Stone

No killing frost has touched our gardens yet...but one is surely soon to come. The drought is abated (and hopefully over). The winter birds are returning and the songs of summer are headed south. Is there anything left to do besides garden cleanup? There sure is!...Fall is the time to enjoy the last of summer's harvest, put up the last tomatoes and to plant next year's crop of garlic and shallots. Also, now that our lawns are rejuvenated by the recent rain, an application of balanced fertilizer now will save you time in the spring.

This week I will harvest the last of the basil and parsley. I preserve their summer fresh flavor by freezing. I simply place the washed leaves in a food processor, with a touch of oil and lemon juice, and chop. The coarsely chopped leaf paste is then poured into ice cube trays and frozen. I store the frozen herbs in zip lock bags and enjoy them in recipes all winter long.

The basil and parsley will be replaced in the garden with garlic and shallots. These are available in garden centers now, but you can also use grocery bought cloves as well. Separate the clusters and plant each clove about two inches deep and about six inches apart in a sunny location and wait for the harvest next August.

The lawn is next on the list. Now is the time to lower the blade height setting of your mower to about 1.5 inches. Annual weeds are no longer a problem and the sun is not strong enough to burn the grass roots. Besides it is easier to rake leaves on short grass than on tall.

This year, before we apply fertilizer, we plan to aerate the lawn. Our lawn is more than seven years old and has only been aerated once, about five years ago. By aerating we hope to get some fertilizer further down in the soil and to improve oxygen flow to the roots in one step. Use a fall fertilizer that is high in phosphorus to also enhance root growth. If you are using a general garden fertilizer you might add in some bone meal, at a rate of four to five pounds per 1000 square feet, for an extra phosphorus boost.

Lastly, this week I will clean out the bird feeders and bird houses before we are too busy raking. The nesters are gone and I want to encourage them back next year. And, with the return of winter birds, I hope to entice them to my feeders early.

by Capt. Larz Neilson

The construction of a bridge is not always easy. Witness the events which are occurring, in the construction of a new bridge for Burlington Avenue, in what is termed Wilmington Square.

When the Boston & Lowell Railroad was constructed a bridge was built, over the tracks. The directors of the railroad wanted no accidents. They ordered bridge crossings at practically every place along their tracks where there was a road.

The year was 1836. The bridge over the railroad lasted until about 1900, when a new bridge had to be built. The engines, and the cars on that railroad were getting bigger.

A man named J. Frank Crockett settled in Wilmington, near that new bridge. He was probably a New Hampshire man, and Wilmington was just about half way between Lowell and Boston. Capt. MacIntosh was handy, in Wilmington, if ever there was trouble on the railroad with a locomotive.

Frank Crockett constructed a home right near the Middlesex Canal. Today Floradale Avenue is there, and Crockett's home faced on that street. In fact he constructed it where the old Diamond Crystal Salt Company made a parking lot.

George S. Crockett, a nephew, came down from New Hampshire, too. So did a lady, his sister, named Almira J. Carley. Almira had two homes constructed on Burlington Avenue, just westerly of Floradale Avenue. They are still there, the first two homes one sees after passing Floradale Avenue.

George S. Crockett married Julia MacIntosh, the daughter of Capt. George MacIntosh. Capt. MacIntosh was from Maine, and had commanded sailing ships before the Civil War, and he had established a stevedoring business in New Orleans before that war started.

Julia had six brothers, and one of them was named Schamiel.

During the Civil War Capt. MacIntosh lost the stevedoring business which he operated. It was one of the disasters of that period.

Mary Ann made her way to Wilmington during the latter part of the Civil War, going up the Mississippi River on a steamboat with her children, and then across country to Wilmington. Capt. MacIntosh came up after the war was over. He had property in Wilmington, a substantial farm on Main Street, almost down to Butters Row.

In time Capt. MacIntosh became a section foreman for the Boston & Lowell Railroad. He was a stalwart man, who understood the value of working.

Some persons may remember Mrs. Stanley Webber, for many years a teacher in Wilmington High School - the old red building on Middlesex Avenue. She was a daughter of George Crockett and Julia MacIntosh, and was better known as George M.A.M. Webber.

The letters M.A.M. came from her grandmother, Mary Ann MacIntosh, the plucky lady who made her way to Wilmington during the Civil War. This writer never saw her, but she did live until about 1923.

Her son Schamiel became a blacksmith and established a shop on what is now Church Street. He also had several other buildings, all of which burned down during the early 1900s.

Schamiel built another building, along Church Street, and it became a hardware store, one that was burned down about three years ago. One of the events of the 1920s and later, with Schamiel, was to go into his store and talk with him. By that time he was partly deaf. What say?

Schamiel bought land along Burlington Avenue. Included was a small hill, on the west side, where Webber Street is today.

That, it turned out, was the place in Wilmington where gold was discovered!

About 1880 there was a man living in the Crockett house who was named Parsons. Where he came from no one knows. He stayed in Wilmington about six months, and then disappeared.

But, one morning there was a big headline in the Boston Globe.

"Gold in Wilmington!"

As could be expected many persons came out from Boston to see for themselves. It wasn't exactly a gold rush, but the people did come.

Parsons was in Wilmington, all ready to sell stock in his gold company. There were holes in the ground, from which he dug gold. He held the gold in his hand, and there was no doubt about it.

Whether or not Parsons sold any stock in his mine is not known. He did not hang around very long.

But Parsons had some gold, gold dust from California. He had put that gold in a shotgun and fired that shotgun into the hill which Schamiel owned. That was the story. Did anyone make any money?

Anyway, it was soon time to build a new bridge over the railroad. The one constructed in 1836 was too small.

A contractor built a new bridge, and he hired Herb Barrows to get the fill. Herb owned a big farm which is now Textron, and he had several very fine horses, to haul dump wagons.

Herb hauled the fill from Schamiel's hill and he hauled it to the construction site, with his horses. It took several months.

The new bridge was higher than the one which it replaced.

The hole from which Herb took that fill, nearly 100 years ago is no longer there. A firm named Jackson Brothers about 30 years ago built new homes along Webber Street, and they filled in the hole.

The gold mine no longer exists.

But it was during the Good Old Days, in Wilmington.

Diabetes support group

Open to all people with diabetes. Winchester Hospital offers a professional and peer support group to people coping with the challenges of living with diabetes day to day. In an informal atmosphere, people share similar concerns and needs and exchange experiences, knowledge and information.

Group discussion is led by a licensed clinical social worker on the first Thursday of each month for those with Type II (adult onset) diabetes 7 to 8:30 p.m. On the first Tuesday of each month, a support group for parents of children with diabetes is held from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

These groups are offered free to the public. Call 617-932-8200 for more information.

Wilmington Junior Ballet Society

In an effort to increase awareness and appreciation of ballet and, on a larger scale, the performing arts, Wilmington resident and ballet instructor Wanece Chislett has formed the Wilmington Junior Ballet Society.

The society held its first two regular meetings Thursday, Sept. 28 and Thursday, Oct. 5, electing officers and setting goals.

"The goal is to encourage ballet and the performing arts," Chislett said. "And to familiarize people with ballet and the world of ballet."

For more information on the Junior Ballet Society, call Wanece at 658-2236, or stop by any of their weekly meetings. Meetings are held from 8-9 p.m. every Thursday at the Wilmington School of Ballet, which is located in Wanece's home, located on 20 Oakdale Rd. in Wilmington.

Silver Lake was a source for business

by Capt. Larz Neilson

Walter L. Hale. Seventy-five years ago, in Wilmington,it was a name which, it seemed,would last forever. Walter lived in a house he had constructed about 20 years previously. Today that house is known as the Yentile Farm on Cross Street. Walter - he died in Florida, some time about 1950.

Walter was an important and well known person in Wilmington in the days before and after World War I.

He owned an ice house on the beach at Silver Lake. He sold ice all around Wilmington and a goodly part of Tewksbury.

The drivers of those ice wagons were good tempered individuals who showed up every morning except Sunday and engaged in good natured banter, as they loaded their ice wagons for the day. Then they left on their accustomed routes.

There were square yellow cards which had been given to the householders of Wilmington and south Tewksbury. A glance at that card, in the windows of the homes, as they were passed,would tell the driver the size of ice cube which was needed for the ice box,or maybe, if no ice was needed at all.

The driver would cut a piece of ice taken from Silver Lake, into the appropriate size and carry it into the house, his clothing protected by a small rubber cloth. He would collect the 15 or 25 cents and go on to the next door.Probably he would be whistling as he worked. It was a sort of merry business.

As far as those drivers knew, their's was a business which would last forever. No one dreamed that, after a dozen years or so there than would be electric powered ice boxes which never would need any ice cubes.

Those drivers would laugh and whistle as they loaded their ice carts. They addressed Walter as "Deacon."

Wilmington's valuation of the ice house was $1700, which was a lot of money in those days before the war started which became known as World War I.

The ice house stood near Silver Lake at the approximate end of Glen Road. There was a ditch which had been dug two centuries before to provide power for a mill on Glen Road, on Lubbers Brook. That ditch was the end of Walter's property.

He paid the men who worked in the ice house, sliding out the icy cakes, a small amount of money, 25 cents an hour. But it was good money in those days.

The work in the winter was different.

About the 10th of January, Walter, Peter and Christian Neilson would go out on the ice on Sunday with a couple of hired men, to test the ice. They would chop away, and generally find that the ice was thick enough to cut.

They were watched from the shore by the farmer's boys, who had little to do in the winter. When those boys learned that the ice was thick enough to cut, they would go home, prepared to be on the ice at about 7 a.m. on Monday. Their pay, they knew,would be 25 cents an hour.

Early Monday morning the men who cut the ice would be busy. They cut a "pond" square, from which could be floated, piece by piece to the loading rack near the ice house. Peter Neilson would be there - the "Boss of the Pond," and Christian Neilson would be at the end of the area to which the ice cubes were floated. He loaded the cubes into a loading elevator, which would take the ice "uphill" to the ice house. There other men would steer the pieces into the place where they would wait for summer. Peter and Christian each received 50 cents an hour.

The ice houses were huge "boxes" of houses, with a lot of sawdust in the sides of the building. This writer never saw an ice house from the inside.

Did those squares freeze together, during the rest of the winter? How did Walter's employees loosen them, in the summer? This writer never knew.

The young men, as they worked on the ice, would tend to "skylark." They never pushed each other into the water, but they were always making gestures which tended to do that.

Ice Houses at Silver Lake, Wilmington, Mass.

A 1916 post card shows the enormous ice houses which once occupied the land now called the town beach. Seventeen enormous ice houses were serviced by the two ice runways which ran up from Silver Lake. Between the runways a careful inspection will show the office of John T. Wilde, two stories above the lake level. At the far left is the Moxie sign over the bathhouses of Mr. MacFarlane. The left part of the structure was where he had his ice cream parlor.

The Union Ice houses

There was one unfortunate person who always got there, but many persons said he should not be allowed on the ice. His name was "Tony."

He was not of Italian derivation. As a young man of about three or four he had drank some lye from a can his mother was using as she scrubbed the kitchen floor.

Tony was unable to talk. He was not in good condition. The other boys would tease him, all day long. They would get Tony on an ice raft and push it out onto the pond. "Le' me offa here!" Tony would implore.

Peter Neilson would succeed, after a while and Tony would be sent home.

But he would return!

There were three times in a dozen years or so in which the ice houses of Walter Hale burned down. Each was, in a sense, a catastrophe.

The third time the fires were set by an eight year old boy who lived on Grove Avenue. He was always playing with matches. The writer's youngest sister remarked more than once about it.

The writer was in North Reading one beautiful day, riding in his father's truck. An immense cloud of smoke could be seen - five miles away!

It was Walter's ice houses. That little boy had set the fire. They were destroyed.

Pop Neilson loaned Walter a couple of thousand, and he rebuilt the ice houses. Pop always had good money in the summer, because of the many summer boarders at the Elms

Walter filled those ice boxes on schedule the next winter.

Walter Hale, it can be reported, was sometimes elected to public office in Wilmington, and did business with the town.

In 1918 he is recorded as having sold coal to Wilmington, presumably for the heating of schools. The bill for the year was $1102.38.

In 1918 he was elected to the office of tax collector. In 1926 he was elected a selectman. Those things didn't just didn't happen, not in Wilmington.

Another post card from the same era shows another view of an ice house on Silver Lake.

Milton, Jasper leave road

by Capt.Larz Neilson

"Don't call me that!" Walter would say. "I'm not the Deacon of the Church. I'm only a trustee!"

He was referring to the Wilmington Methodist Church where he would be seen every Sunday.

Walter had bought the ice house a few years previously from Fred F. Eames. Fred had business of selling coal, from a site by the railroad in North Wilmington, and ice from that ice house on Silver Lake.

How did the name Adams become applied to a street which stretches easterly from Middlesex Avenue, and which ends at Parker Street, in Wilmington?

The corner of Middlesex Avenue and Adams Street reaches back a bit, into Wilmington history. A house was constructed there, about 1848, to be the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Adams. She was the great granddaughter of the Rev. Isaac Morrill, he who was the first minister of the Congregational Church in Wilmington.

The marriage of Susan M. Morrill and Cyrus Adams was on April 6, 1848. Two children were born to that couple, Milton Fay Adams, Sept. 6, 1849 and Jasper Morrill Adams, August 27, 1853. After that the family disappears from the pages of Wilmington history.

Maybe they went to California to hunt gold!

Many years later the Catholic Club of Wilmington had a building on that site. It was a lively organization.

After that the American Legion had its club house there. Now the Legion is located off Lowell Street, and recently it sought, through the Wilmington Board of Appeals to divide the lot, so that the Post could sell two house lots.

The Board of Appeals could not grant that.

Anyway, gentle readers, you now know how Adams Street got its name.

ARE YOU PROTECTED?
by Edward H. Wilkens
EXPANDABLE HOMEOWNERS INSURANCE
QUESTION: My homeowners insurance is sufficient for the house itself, but not adequate for other coverages. Can it be expanded?

ANSWER: It certainly can. Valuables such as furs, jewelry, stamp or coin collections have limited protection under a standard policy. These should be fully insured and "scheduled". Don't rely on the minimum limits provided in the personal liability package policy. These may be increased to four times as much for only a few dollars.
Increased coverage may be needed for additional structures, such as garages. The amount available for these is usually limited to 10% of the insurance on the home.
FORTUNATELY, homeowners insurance can be expanded to cover additional risks.

Visiting nurse offers flu clinics

As a public service to the community, the Visiting Nurse Association of Middlesex-East is offering low cost flu shots at numerous convenient locations throughout their service area. Companies interested in flu shots for their employees can call to arrange on-site clinics during the months of October, November and December.

These shots are targeted to anyone judged to be high risk, and anyone over the age of 18 who is frequently in public areas and would like extra protection against influenza outbreaks. "This year more than 80 sister VNAs throughout the United States will also be providing low cost flu shots in their service areas. Together, we expect to vaccinate more than 700,000 people nationwide," says Janet Craft, MS, RN, executive director.

The shots are administered by a VNA-ME nurse at a cost of $8 per shot. the VNA-ME is able to bill Medicare for anyone who presents their Medicare card with the "part B or Medical Insurance benefit," allowing these persons to receive the flu shot without charge. Volunteers from the community will be assisting at each site.

The Visiting Nurse Association of Middlesex-East is a non-profit, United Way funded health care agency. All proceeds from this program are used to fund care for the indigent in the community. For more information about holding a clinic, attending a clinic, or volunteering for a clinic, call Andrea Turner or Nancy Rafferty, Visiting Nurse Association of Middlesex-East; 12 Beacon St., Stoneham, MA 02180; 617-438-3770 ext. 644; fax 617-438-7994.

Wilmington Library Notes

Aquarium pass

The library has announced that its family pass to the New England Aquarium has been renewed through the generosity of its sponsors. The library can now offer the use of this pass to patrons from October, 1995 through June of 1996. Reservations are now being accepted. Call the circulation desk at 658-2967 for information.

Boston Globe-Horn Book awards for 1995

The prestigious Boston Globe-Horn Book awards for children's books in different categories were presented last week at the traditional awards luncheon held every year at the annual meeting of the New England Library Association. Both the Globe and Horn Book, a journal devoted to children's books, are based in Boston and their jointly sponsored awards are internationally esteemed. The following books received this year's awards and are currently on display in the Children's Department and available for borrowing:

Fiction: Winner, Some of the Kinder Planets by Tim Wynne-Jones; honor books, Jericho by Janet Hickman, Earthshine by Theresa Nelson.

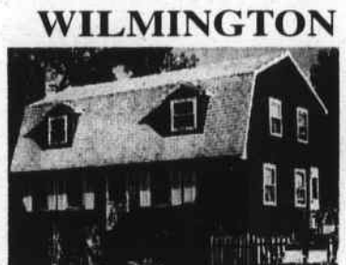

Picture book: Winner, John Henry retold by Julius Lester, illustrated by Brian Pinkney; honor book, Swamp Angel by Anne Isaacs, illustrated by Paul Zelinsky.

Non-fiction: Winner, Abigail Adams: Witness to a Revolution by Natalie Bober; honor books, It's Perfectly Normal by Robie H. Harris, illustrated by Michael Emberley; the Great Fire by Jim Murphy.

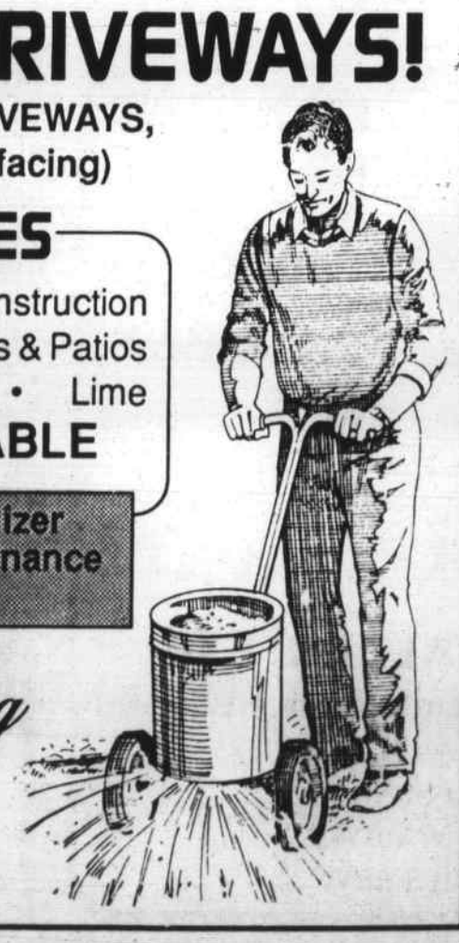

October exhibit

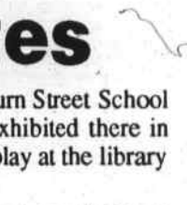

During the month of October, a special exhibit of photographs and drawings done by last year's fifth graders at the Woburn Street School in the spring and exhibited there in June will be on display at the library to share with all.

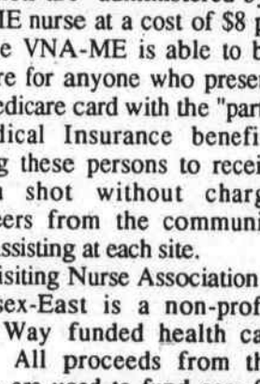

Karen Larrabee, art specialist at the Woburn Street School was awarded an Arts Council Grant last year for the students to visit Wilmington's Olde Burying Ground (1730) in order to make photographs and on-site drawings of its colonial gravesites. Gravestone carving was the first form of sculpture in the colonies. Thanks to Karen Larrabee and Woburn Street Social Studies teacher Sandra Woods, the enthusiastic participants learned about both art and history in this joint project and helped to preserve both. One of the discoveries which excited the children was to find the gravestone of those whose family names are the names of the modern day streets on which many of the children live. Be sure to look for this exhibit in the library's front hall and upstairs when visiting the library this month.

Let's Talk Real Estate
with Ralph E. Newhouse and Maureen A. Foresteire
GRI, CRB

THE BUYER INTERVIEW
The first step to matching you with the perfect home usually involves an in-depth interview with the Realtor who will help you to establish a price range and to determine the features that you need in a home.
The agent will ask a lot of questions, and many of them will seem very personal. What is your income and debt situation? Where do you work? Are schools an important factor? Do you have children or pets? Do you have hobbies that will create special needs? The more information your Realtor has, the easier it will be to eliminate the homes that will not work for you and show you the ones in your price range that should fit your needs. A good Realtor can be a tremendous resource in this process by providing you with information about the homes that are available, as well as about shopping facilities, community services, and public transportation. There is more to being a great real estate professional than merely selling. The best Realtors are also the best listeners and counselors.
For professional advice on buying or selling real estate, please drop by our office in The Starwood Building at 299 Main Street, or call us at 657-8444.

Antiquarian book fair

Where can you find fossilized dinosaur eggs, posters by a nationally known graphic designer, 200-year-old books as well as old maps and prints?

At the sixth annual Antiquarian Book Fair on October 14 at Shriner's Auditorium in Wilmington.

The fair is sponsored by the Mass. and R.I. Antiquarian Booksellers, Inc. (MARIAB) and will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Admission is $4. This year MARIAB has chosen Phil and Bev Reynolds to promote both this fair and next spring's spring fair in Boston. The Reynolds' own the Olde Port Book Shop in Newburyport.

The show draws dealers from as far away as Canada and Washington State, selling a wide variety of books, prints, maps and ephemera. Children's stories, as well as books on local history, art, Americana, cookery and sports will all be on sale. The public will also find mysteries, literature and scholarly tomes at the fair.

"There's a wide range of antiquarian books for anybody who likes to read," said MARIAB show promoter Bev Reynolds.

Limited edition posters by nationally known graphic designer Lance Hidy will also be on sale. Hidy's work often deals with the world of books; he designed the posters for this year's show.

WBACH, the classical radio station, will broadcast directly from the fair. Catered food will be available throughout the day.

MARIAB will also hold a strong antiquarian book fair at the Park Plaza Castle in Boston, April 27-28.

For more information call Phil Reynolds at 508-462-0100.

Commissioners meet Tuesday

The Commissioners meeting will be held in the function room of the Buzzell Senior Center at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 17.

This is a televised meeting and will be broadcast several times during the month. The Commissioners would like to see more seniors taking an interest in the monthly meetings.

Guest speaker at this meeting will be a therapist from Woodbriar Rehabilitation and Skilled Nursing Center. She will be speaking on falls vs the aging process, (the myths and facts). Also the risk factors (the emotional effects a fall can cause) and prevention (that is our physical and home condition and safety education). The therapist will cover all effects a fall can have on the older person.

It is to our advantage to learn as much as we can to prevent falls in our homes. Try to be at the meeting.

Community Teamwork

Community Teamwork has begun sending out applications for fuel assistance this year to seniors who qualified last year for assistance. Deliveries will begin November 1, therefore when you receive your application check it to see that everything is the same as last year, sign and mail it back. When it arrives at CTI, it will be checked again for accuracy. If there is an incorrect answer on the application it will be put into a box until all the hundreds of applications have been checked. Then it will be returned to you to correct. Make completely sure if another person is now living in the house who is not listed on the application, add the name. It will be found out at CTI where your application will be rejected.

Flu shots

Flu shots will be given at the Senior Center Wed., Oct. 25 from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. and at Deming Way Wed., Nov. 1 from 1 to 3 p.m. Please call the center if you are coming for the flu shot. Ann will bring pneumonia vaccine on request, when you call let the person know if you want the pneumonia injection also.

Elks Thanksgiving dinner

We have been invited by the Tewksbury/Wilmington Elks to be their guests at their annual Wilmington Senior Citizen Thanksgiving Dinner Dance Thursday evening, Nov. 9 from 6-11 in Elks Hall. A turkey dinner will be served at 7 p.m., music will be by Jimmy and Elaine.

All Wilmington residents 60 years of age and older are invited. We have the tickets at the Center, they can be picked up any day. If you are a senior who lives alone or with spouse and has no one who can take you to the hall, call the center, we will try to arrange transportation.

Lions Club

The Wilmington Lions Club wants to honor as many World War Two veterans as they can on Veterans' Day, Saturday, Nov. 11. This being the 50th Anniversary of WWII Armistice. It is the Lions Club hope to honor all Wilmington veterans of that war by having a contingent of veterans walking proudly in the parade. Those unable to walk, will be able to ride in cars behind the marchers, not only for yourself but to keep the memories alive of all those who made the ultimate sacrifice to preserve the freedom we all have in the United States today. The celebration will be continued after the parade.

The Lions club has papers at the center for all our veterans to be honored in the parade on Veterans Day.

Fall fair

The Senior Fall Fair is only two months away. Most of the seniors in classes and programs at the center and those attending the socials who were given chance books have returned them. Many have asked for another book or two. If you did not return the book or the $5 because you forgot it, that's ok, and if you do not have the $5, that's ok, but we hope all returns are made before the fair begins, as the chance books are the biggest money maker. If you are a senior who does not come to the center and would like a book, call the center and we will mail you one.

Write those letters

Don't forget to pick up the letters to the politicians to stop the cuts suggested by Congress in Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid. These politicians are not being good to the elderly citizens as they would like us to believe. Have you heard any of the House members or Senators say to balance the budget we will give up our free medical care. Not yet! Pick up the letters and mail them today. By the end of October the vote will be taken to cut the elders' health coverage. You can stop it now.

So-long for a while

This will be the last column for a few weeks. I will be on vacation. Remember, all programs and classes at the center are open to Wilmington residents 60 years of age or over. Don't sit home and vegetate, get involved with other seniors in any or all activities: art, bingo, ceramics, crafts, dance, exercise, fair, nutrition, sing-a-long, sewing, knitting, crocheting, shop, therapeutic socials and whist, health programs, blood pressure, diabetes, cholesterol screenings, hearing specialist, podiatrist, meals program and Shine program. Call the director.

Fight against each other has helped these sisters

by James Pote

As if it isn't difficult enough to be battling for a position on a varsity athletic team, how about battling for the same position with a sibling?

Jill Lojek, a junior at Wilmington High School, had to go toe to toe against her younger sister, Amanda, a freshman, at the start of the fall season to be defenders for the girls soccer team.

The days of collecting Barbie dolls together and the days of Amanda chasing Jill around with worms were over. It was time to compete. And they both won.

Both girls made the team and neither of them bounced the other one off. Everything from that point on was a piece of cake.

"It was weird at first, but I'm really glad that we are on the same team," said Jill, the 16-year-old three-sport athlete.

"We play the same styles," Jill continued. "I know her capabilities and she knows mine. We both need to work on the same things. But, I like having her on the team. When I go out for a substitute, she goes in and I know the job is going to be done right."

Amanada, on the other hand, thought that Jill would get her back for the worm chasing days, by treating her little sister as one of the "freshman" on the team.

"I thought that she would be mean to me - but she's not. I know when she is yelling at me it's not personally because she is trying to help me become a better player. It's not as bad as I thought it would be," said the 14-year-old who plays just soccer.

Jill said that her younger sister should be happy with the way she has been treated.

"She should be happy," laughed Jill. "It's frustrating because everyone is always yelling and trying to help everyone else out. When I yell at her, I'm not trying to pick on her, I'm just getting my point across."

Head coach Sue Hendee really likes the effort she gets from both of her defenders.

"Jill is by far the most improved player from last year's team. Both of them have the same work ethic - they both work very, very hard, they both are not intimidated by anyone and both of them step-up into the play whenever it is needed. They both work very hard and it shows."

Jill spent some time with the team the past two years when the soccer teams went to the state tournament. She also was a part of the 1994 Division II State Softball Championship team. From there, she realizes that it takes more than one or two superstars to make a team go places.

"The two sports [softball and soccer] are a lot different. In softball you can be struggling with the bat, but play well in the field and in soccer it's more of a team effort than an individual one because you must regain possession of the ball and control it," Jill said. "Softball you can have a great pitcher and one or two other good players and win it all. You have to have an entire soccer team playing well in order for the team to win."

That analysis is most certainly true. And at the start of the season, the girls soccer team was not playing that well as a team, but individually, a lot of players were playing very well, including both Jill and Amanda. As of late, the entire team has taken in Jill's thoughts and has played much better.

"I don't know why we are playing better, but we are. Masco was supposed to kill us and we only lost 2-0 and everyone played awesome. Elaine [Bruno, Wilmington's goalie] has been playing great. She continues to get better and better. If we can continue to play as a team than we will have a lot more wins," Jill said.

Amanda, though, admitted that she didn't think she was going to make the varsity team during tryouts.

"I thought if I made it, it would be as a forward. I didn't think I would make it as a freshman," Amanda said.

Both of them admitted that they enjoy playing defense because it leaves just them and their goalie. And much like co-captain Nicole Dussault admitted a few weeks ago, defenders like that kind of pressure.

"Defense is the backbone of any team. It's the last line before the player gets to the goalie and I really like knowing that I have to stop the on-coming player so everything is not left up to my goalie, Jill said. "I know if I do my job, than the pressure is off the goalie, but if I don't do my job, my goalie and my team is in trouble."

Ever since the Lojek family moved to Wilmington when Jill and Amanda were six and four respectively, the two sisters and their younger brother, Chucky, have been very close. Jill said that when they first moved, they were the lone children in the neighborhood and that has kept the three of them together. That is obvious on the playing fields.

"We are like normal sisters. We get along but we have our fights. We're not like the Bobsey Twins or the Brady Bunch. We have fun - especially with Chucky, we wrestle with him. We always have good laughs with him," Jill said.

Football team gets first victory

by James Pote

In order for a football team to win a game, they must mix several ingredients into a bowl: a passing game, a running game and a defense that can hold the opposition.

For the first time in a while, the Wilmington High School varsity football team found the perfect amount of all three ingredients and more. What they ended up with was their first ever Cape Ann League win, a 24-0 shutout over North Reading on a wet and damp Alumni Field in Wilmington Saturday afternoon.

The first ingredient, the passing game, was the best it has been in the past several years. Quarterback Tim Gillis completed 6-11 passes for 114 yards, with one touchdown pass and one interception.

His biggest completion came on a third-and-18 play from the North Reading 36-yard line with Wilmington up just 6-0 and two minutes and change left in the first half. Gillis went long looking for Billy Harrison and found him open a few yards in front of the end zone. Harrison caught the ball, turned and dove over the goal line to put his team up 12-0.

All but one of Gillis' passes were big gains. Case in point, he first hit Brian Carroll for nine yards, Sean Kerrigan for eight yards, Harrison for 36 and the TD, Harrison again for 18 and Kerrigan for 43.

The second ingredient was the running game. And boy, did Wilmington ever have a running game. On 40 total carries, the team pounded out a total of 265 yards, which included a whopping 157 from Harrison on 24 carries. All in all, the junior tailback finished the day with 211 total yards and all three Wildcat touchdowns.

Also chipping in was Kerrigan with 32 yards on six carries; freshman Mike Gennetti, who had 31 yards on six carries; Tim Gillis, who gained 19 yards on two carries and Rich Gillis, who turned in a 9-yard run.

The final main ingredient was the defense. North Reading gained just 90 total yards throughout the entire day. Forty-eight of those 90 came in the second half with 29 coming in the final minute.

ball. First, the junior linebacker recovered a fumble on North Reading's third play of their first series. That turnover was converted into Wilmington's first touchdown.

Then, on a second-and-nine play from the NR 5-yard line in the fourth quarter Kerrigan roared in on a blitz and crunched quarterback Pat Martin for a safety.

Junior Mike O'Toole also came up big on a third-and-five play for NR on their own 35-yard line. O'Toole came bursting in to sack the quarterback for a loss of 8 yards to force NR to punt. Wilmington turned that big play into their second touchdown of the game.

Also playing well defensively were linebacker Jamie Campbell, who was noted for recovering a fumble, as well as senior co-captain linebacker Tom Burke.

"It was nice to get the first win. The kids worked very hard for this. After fumbling the ball on the opening kick-off and then getting the ball back, we took control and never looked back. We made some mistakes but overcame them," said head coach Gerry Sullivan.

The game did start on a grim note. Wilmington fumbled the kick-off but got the ball back three plays later when Kerrigan pounced on a fumble.

Harrison then ran the ball 10 out of the 12 plays beginning at the Wilmington 24-yard line, which included a 1-yard run at the 6:51 mark of the first quarter for his first of three touchdowns on the day. Harrison's ten carries went as follows: runs of 9, 11, 10, 11, 4, 15, 9, 0, 4 and 1 yards.

"I was a little tired but I loved getting the ball that much. Sean Kerrigan made the whole drive possible with a few good runs and some great blocks," Harrison said.

After both teams couldn't get anything going on their next two series each, Wilmington had the ball at the North Reading 43-yard line with about four minutes left to play in the first half.

Kerrigan started the drive off with a 15-yard gain through the middle. After a 8-yard holding penalty which canceled Kerrigan's second successful run, an incom- plete pass was thrown which set-up second-and-18 from the NR 36. Harrison then caught a Gillis pass but was stopped at the line of scrimmage. Harrison described the play after the game.

"We had a third-and-long situation from around their 40-yard line. I was in motion starting from the right, and I faked a short pass from Timmy and then I went past the defender down the sidelines and Timmy gave me a great pass. I caught the ball, turned and dove into the end zone," Harrison said.

The final Harrison touchdown wouldn't have happened without the tremendous blocking of tight end Rich Gillis. On first-and-goal from the 5-yard line, Tim Gillis handed off to Harrison who cut to the right. Rich Gillis was leading the way and took two North Reading defenders with him into the end zone to allow Harrison to follow. That made it 22-0.

"That was an awesome block," Harrison said.

The key to this game was not having a second half let-down. After three weeks of surrendering second half leads, the Cats held onto their 14-0 lead at halftime.

"I knew we weren't going to lose the lead today," said Sullivan.

"We didn't die in the second half - right now things are looking a lot better. We have the momentum going into next week and North Reading beat [next week's opponent] Amesbury, so things are looking pretty good - but, we can't get too over-confident," Harrison said.

Girls soccer team has two great games ... and

by James Pote

With Tuesday's 2-0 loss to Lynnfield and the team's record now standing at 3-6-2, Wilmington High School girls varsity soccer coach Sue Hendee is wondering what her team has to do to get more motivated. It seems time is running out.

"I was a little disappointed that in the last 20 minutes of the game the only cheering I heard came from one parent," said Hendee.

Hendee said she was very pleased with the team's efforts from this past week of a 2-0 win over Georgetown and a 2-0 loss to highly touted Masco, but she didn't know what happened against Lynnfield.

"We played two really good games. And then today we just didn't have it. Hopefully, they will rebound Thursday [when they travel to North Reading]," Hendee said.

Against Georgetown, Renee Vachon scored ten minutes into the game and Nicole Dussault notched her first of the year on an indirect kick to put the game away for the Cats.

Hendee said the entire team played well against Georgetown and they carried that over into the play against Masco, even so, they dominated the last 15 minutes of play but couldn't get rid of the goose egg. But, losing 2-0 to a team of that caliber, is something to be proud of.

But, then there is Monday ... the team just didn't have it on this day. Elaine Bruno started in net, but was removed for her hyperextended elbow that she suffered earlier in the week at practice, to be checked and she made three saves before being replaced by sophomore Melissa Mather.

Mather made two saves and yielded a goal in which it was a catch 22 - either she comes out of the net and stops a player barging in, or lay-back and have the player walk right in and score. She took the only chance she had and the Lynnfield player was able to get one by.

Bruno returned about ten minutes later and saved six more shots including being in the net half of the second half. Mather returned after a stint as half back and made two more saves for a solid, yet busy afternoon. All in all, Mather had a terrific - yet difficult, day.

Wilmington couldn't get anything together offensively against Lynnfield, with just two shots on net. The closest they came was a Lauren Senesi shot that was over dramatized and missed by the goaltender on a bellyflop save, the ball rolled towards the net before a defender booted it out of sight.

Melissa Palermo displayed great hustle in the loss.

Lynch, Mutchler lead youth field hockey play

Maura Lynch and Janessa Mutchler each netted two goals and Kelly Gillis added one goal to spark the Blue Bandits to a 5-3 to victory over the Blue Blazers, in Wilmington Youth Field Hockey action.

Katie Chisholm played a strong defensive game for the Bandits to help keep the pesky Blazers at bay.

Also playing well for the Bandits were Shannon Cunningham, Christine DeMango, Christine DeSimone, Amanda Gustin, Sarah Hubbard, Brittany Lund, Bethany Mutchler, Jacqueline Rubino and Lauren Whitfield.

The Blue Blazers got goals from Aimee Coutu and Kelly McLaughlin. They also got good play from Julie Cronin, Michelle Cronin, Lauren Gearty, Jim Nadeau, Lauren Olson, Allea Scifo, Kim Thomas and Kathleen Walsh.

The next game was an outstanding game between the White Hackers and the Blue Bombers that ended in a 2-2 tie. Christina Downs and Robin Mainini got the goals for the Hackers who also got great games from Rebecca Allen, Ashley Biggens, Courtney Gilligan, Mary Grace Inglese, Kara and Kristie Langone, Regina Paglia, Katie Sullivan, Amanda Von Herrman, Krista Wolfe and Sarah Zimmerman.

The Blue Bombers got their goals from Caitlyn Bransfield and Christine Carrozza. They also got outstanding games from Jill Cauldwell and Kim Gillespie who stymied the Hackers many times. Katie Holloway played a good game in goal for the Bombers who got good support in front of her from defender Kelly Torpey.

The Bombers also got good games from Erin Dolye, Melissa Hanrahan, Christine Johnson and Allison MacDonald.

Action from earlier in the week saw the Green Machine and the Blue Bombers battle. The Green Machine goal scorer was Candace Sousa. They got good games from Katelyn Sughrue, Katie Hickey, Kristin O'Toole, Christina Brogan, Kristin Sauve, Kelly Cavanaugh, Julie Swartwot, Kaleena Schmman and Leanne Shirley.

The Bombers got good games from Molly Pidgeon, Andrea Tuttle and Judy Weiner.

The next game saw the White Hackers and Blue Bandits battle to a two to two tie. Goal scorers for the Hackers were Kara Langone and Robin Mainini, while Amanda Gustin got both goals for the Blue Bandits.

The next game saw Kristin Thomas net three goals against the Gray Ghosts. The Ghosts countered with two goals from Colleen Campbell, Katie Catazano, Colleen Duggan, Alicia Forester, Marlene O'Rourke, Lori Vachon and Ann Warford.

Field hockey team ties Masco

by James Pote

The Wilmington High School varsity field hockey team lost 3-1 to Georgetown last Thursday before coming home and tying Masconomet in a hard fought scoreless game to put their overall record to 4-6-2.

Jodi MacKenzie continues to blossom as she scored the lone goal in the team's defeat. That was her fifth goal of the season thus far for the speedy forward.

Head coach Maureen Noone said she was pleased with MacKenzie's efforts as well as many others including Paula DeCourcey, Suzie Williams, Karen MacArthur, and Deanna Ward to name a few over the past two games. Noone said the entire team is playing very well and displaying nothing but hustle.

"I have been very pleased with the effort. [On Monday] the defense played very well. I thought we played well, but I thought we could have beaten them. We had too many scoring chances not too," Noone said.

The defense which is started inbetween the pipes by senior Jenn Mullins, once again proved to be the fatal weapon of the Cats. Mullins earned her fifth shut out of the season with nine saves. She was helped out by the defenders, Williams, MacArthur, Nicole Catazano, Katie Gillis and DeCourcey.

The middle players or the halves also played very well. Starting from captain Leanne Harris to Tricia Kane to Christina Peters to Christine Crowley, the entire squad continues to battle hard.

The forwards also having been playing well. Deanna Ward missed a few scoring opportunities, as well as Julie Gillis and MacKenzie who has been on fire of late. Catherine Townsend, another talented forward, was out most of Monday's game with an injury from a swinging stick that hit the side of her eye. She appears to be okay.

The team travels to Lynnfield on Wednesday, before facing Dracut home on Thursday and then traveling to Masconomet next Tuesday.

Boys soccer team loses heartbreaker to Lynnfield

by James Pote

The Wilmington High School boys soccer team continued to show its progress throughout the season. The team's outcomes have been up and down but their effort hasn't been with three strong consecutive games from this past week.

First the team beat Georgetown 1-0 on another game winning goal on a 1-0 game from Eric Jones. He last did that against Tewksbury. Goaltender Darren Bishop played very well and he earned his fourth shut out of the season.

Against Masco, the team played extremely well, probably their best brand of the season and came out with a 3-2 win. Kevin Kacamburas scored two goals and Billy Covino supplied the other.

Finally, on Tuesday, the team wrapped up a great week with a 1-0 loss to Lynnfield on a fluke goal. A player from their team supplied his team with a roll, flip and throw, throw-in which went all the way off of Bishop's fingers and into the net. The throw was a tremendous heave and it has to be touched by at least two players before it goes into the net. But, without seeing this kind of manuever before, Bishop didn't know that he didn't have to touch it.

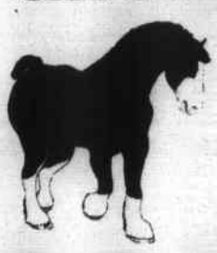

"I don't fault Darren at all. Those kinds of goals you learn with experience. He played great in that game and he really has played well the last few games. It wasn't his fault by any means," said head coach Dick Scanlon.

The team dominated the last 15 minutes of play, but couldn't tie up the game.

The team is now 5-7-2 with four games remaining and are looking to at least go .500 to make it to state tournament play.

Save the fish ... for dinner!

by Bill Conlon

I knew it had to happen sooner or later. Just when you think you've heard it all, seen all the silliness that humans inflict on one another, now comes another example. Maybe that bumper sticker is right: "Save The Planet, Kill Yourself."

The October 10 issue of the Wall Street Journal carried a front page story about -- brace yourselves for this one -- fish-rights activists.

That wasn't a misprint. There are people actively trying to kill off the sport of fishing, on the grounds that it's cruel to the fish.

Cruel. To the fish. Hello?

Our old friends at People For The Ethical Treatment of Animals -- or PETA -- are at it again. (I like the Rush Limbaugh spin: PETA stands for People Eating Tasty Animals.) A bigger bunch of get-a-lifers I've never met.

The Journal quotes PETA spokes-type Tracy Reiman as saying, "Just because fish and lobsters aren't cute and cuddly doesn't mean that they don't suffer excruciating pain." I'm appalled at the very thought, really I am. Continuing, "You wouldn't sink a hook into your cat and leave it flopping on the deck gasping for air, would you?"

I've met a few cats ... oh, never mind. Let that one go.

The Journal story tells of activists in lobster suits harassing patrons at Gladstone's in San Fran, and spray-painted graffiti by the Crustacean Liberation Front.

Folks, I wish I was making this up. I wish I could tell you that this is some off-season April Fool gag. But it isn't.

Despite the estimated 54 million of us who love to fish, these people are vocally, adamantly opposed.

This deer season, you might run afoul of this sort of animal-hugging activism. A few years back I was hunting on public land, out near the Quabbin, when we met another guy in the parking lot as he came out of the woods. He said it was lucky we weren't parked there the previous weekend, because animal-pals came through and slashed every tire in the parking lot. Yeah, they did.

I've heard stories of activists who walk through the woods clanging pots and pans to scare the deer, or spreading human hair clippings to set up "smell barriers," and some who get right into the hunters faces, screaming.

There are laws on the books that forbid interference with hunters in lawful pursuit of their sport, but it isn't likely you'll find a cop in the right place at the right time to help you out. If they come up to you, you'll have to ride out the storm but do try to get an ID for later legal action. And remember, it is VERY impolite to shoot them.

Stop me if I'm wrong, but does the Bible not say, in Genesis, that God gave us "dominion" over all other living things on this mudball we call home? Birds, mammals ... take your pick. We "own" them, by divine writ.

Barring a rewrite of evolution, a realignment of the millions of years of development that brought us to where we are today, most humans include meat in their diets. Oh, the meat-free crowd is large, and even growing, and I have an old hunting buddy who has limited the intake of mammals in his diet. Bird and fish are fine, but he won't order prime rib if there's haddock on the menu. Fine. That's his choice.

But to agitate against the killing of all animals, in my mind, is silly. We will never, ever have the sort of "enlightened" world, with no death or dying or pain for animals, that these people seem to want. As the Journal story rightly points out, a fish suffers in the jaws of a shark, but you don't see PETA picketing Great Whites on Australia's barrier reef, do you?

My one recurring thought when I read about animal-rights activists is that these folks have too much time on their hands. WAY too much time on their hands.

Animals die, people eat them, and the world goes on as it always has.

Under ten soccer team undefeated

Wilmington vs Lincoln

Five games into its season the Wilmington Boys Under 10 D Team has yet to meet its match. The undefeated soccer dynamo boosted its record to 5-0 with victories over Lincoln, 7-0 and Everett, 3-0.

A tenacious Lincoln squad gave Wilmington its first real test at the outset of their Sept. 30 game and frustrated the host's explosive offense. At the other end of the field Wilmington's strong defense kept Lincoln from capitalizing on early opportunities as defender Scott Sferazza turned back a series of rushes.

But like a powder keg with a slow burning fuse, Wilmington ignited with a inevitable bang when Derek Concannon took a pass from Raymond Gravallese and fired a shot that careened off the crossbar.

The fireworks continued a short time later when Mark Giordano blasted a loose ball from point blank range into the back of the net. While the offense was coming alive, Wilmington defenders Sean Wilson and Dana Zanni were shutting out the Lincoln attack.

Taking a 2-0 edge into the second half, Wilmington's scorers shifted into high gear. Tim Kent opened the flood gates when he banged home a rebound of a long shot by Wilson.

With Wilmington rolling, Kyle Patri, Eric Ollila and Zack Ungvarsky cranked up Coach Bill Kent's patened passing game to generate more scoring punch.

First Patrie dribbled one into the Lincoln goal off a terrific lob pass by Ollila. Ollila then followed it up with one of his own by breaking out of a crowd with the ball and driving a bullet past the Lincoln keeper. Patrie notched his second tally minute later with a long run for a goal.

Hard nosed defenders Michael Cavallaro, Gravallese, Sefrazza and Concannon kept the clamp on Lincoln's offense, repeatedly turning the ball back up field.

Giordano finished off the scoring for Wilmington to record his second goal of the game.

In goal, Zanni and Ungvarsky were perfect, racking up the squad's third shutout with the 7-0 win.

Wilmington vs Everett

On Saturday Wilmington traveled to Everett where it ran into a determined host squad.

Coping with a slippery rain soaked field and some tough defense by Everett, Wilmington's express train offense had trouble getting on track, but as in the previous game, it was strong defense that sparked the scoring.

Zanni stuffed an offensive burst by Everett and a short time later made a great crossing pass that Cavallaro converted into the game's first goal.

With both teams putting good pressure on the ball, Wilmington went into the second half protecting a 1-0 lead. After adjusting to the game's more defensive tone, Wilmington came out in the second half ready to take control.

Sferraza, Concannon, Kent, Gravellese and Wilson contributed some great defensive stands to keep Everett in check and create offensive opportunities.

About midway through the half, Giordano, Cavallaro and Ungvarsky went on the attack. Putting pressure on Everett's defenders, the forwards knocked a ball loose in front of the net. Giordano pounced and booted the ball into the far left corner.

Giordano almost scored again minutes later when Gravallese hit him with a terrific lead pass but the shot was just wide.

Good passing and play making produced the third and final goal of the game when Zanni fed Ollila in front for a goal just seconds before the game ended.

Goalkeepers Patrie and Wilson combined for Wilmington's fourth shutout with booming some strong punts.

Wilmington has outscored the opposition thus far, 36-1.

Tewksbury boys soccer team gets revenge

by James Pote

It's interesting to think just what the TMHS boys soccer team could accomplish if they ever could get their starting line-up together for just one game? They haven't had that luxury yet, and all of the shuffling around seems to be working as the team took revenge and beat Lowell 4-0 after losing to them a few weeks back by the same score.

The team has suffered many injuries so far. Whether it is hamstring pulls, groin pulls, ankle injuries or rib injuries, healthy is the last word to be mentioned for this 5-3-1 team. Injured or healthy, the team has played great in the first half of the season. The games they have lost, they have played very well.

"We have been playing well but we just can't keep getting these injuries. It's been killing us," said head coach Steve Levine.

Against Lowell, Brian Crovo notched his fifth and sixth goals of the year and John Aldred continued his hot pace of timely offense as he chipped in for two more assists to have him lead the team with six.

Levine said the reason for the win was the play of Aldred and especially the play of Anthony D'Angelo, the talented scorer who played stopper back and didn't allow Lowell's big scorer to get any shots of, and also the play of Dave Melo who subbed in for D'Angelo's spot at center midfielder.

"If it wasn't for the three of them we would have lost - plain and simple," Levine stated.

Dan Mahoney played another great game to pick up his fourth shutout.

Mite A's lose slugfest to Newburyport

Mite A
Newburyport 9
Wilmington 5

The Wilmington Mite A Youth Hockey team squared off against Newburyport in Valley League action this past week.

The rivals, paced by two players who combined for seven of their teams nine goals, skated away with the victory.

First period action saw Newburyport take a four goal lead as the Wildcats played tentatively. Dean Smith opened the second period scoring with helpers going to Zach Wilkins and Marshall Nevins.

Newburyport, however responded with three more goals as Wildcat goalie Matt David tried in vain to stem the flow of pucks into the net. Seven to one was the score at the end of two periods. It looked pretty dismal for the locals.

In the third, Wimington came out of its shell and began to beat Newburyport to the puck which yielded three consecutive goals of their own. Eric Raposo, assisted by Wilkins, scored one minute into the third. Mark Giordano connected a half minute later with a strong wrist shot and Timmy Aldrich followed suit on an outstanding breakaway shot. Smith assisted on the play.

With the score now 7-4 and the momentum in Wilmington's favor, Newburyport was getting worried until it scored two more with about four minutes remaining. Kevin Velardo tried to get the locals back into the game by lighting the lamp on a tough angle shot, but it was too little, too late.

Wilmington may have come up short in the end, but the comeback in the third period showed the character this team has.

Wilmington 7 Revere 0

Wilmington opened the 95-96 dual state campaign by posting a 7-0 spanking of Revere. Multiple goal scorers for Wilmington included Dean Smith, Robbie Peterson and Kyle Browne with two goals apiece. Marshall Nevins picked up a goal and Eric Raposo dished out two assists.

Peterson was also credited with an assist on a truly sensational play early in the third period. Robbie picked up the puck at center ice and skated into the Revere zone. When he met the opposing defensemen, he spun into a 180 degree turn and slid a pass into the slot to Kyle Browne who blasted it past the stunned goaltender.

That was as pretty a goal as you will see in Mite hockey. Matt David recorded his second shutout of the season and was assisted greatly by the defensive play of Ray Bennett, Kevin Velardo, Stephen Peterson and Eric Raposo. Mark Giordano, Jacklyn Rideout, Michael McMahon, and Zach Wilkins were dazzling on offense.

Wilmington 11 Melrose 0

In dual state action, Wilmington pummeled Melrose 11-0 as Matt David posted yet another shutout. Leading the attack for the Cats were Dean Smith, Jacklyn Rideout and Zach Wilkins who each scored twice. Eric Raposo, Mark Giordano, Scott Sferrazza, Marshall Nevins and Kevin Velardo all scored single goals.

Assists were awarded to Wilkins (three); Velardo (two); Michael McMahon, Smith, Nevins and Ray Bennett one apiece. Jimmy Fitzpatrick, Kyle Browne, and Stephen Peterson all turned in solid efforts in this game that was highlighted by crisp passing by the Wildcats.

Wilmington youth soccer action

The WHS band and color guard were up to their usual display of great halftime performances at the football games. From left to right Paul Cheney, George Bellefontaine and Jen Russo are playing the xylophone (Photo by Phil Fenton).

IN-TOWN SOCCER UP-DATE (games played 10/07/95)

GIRLS GRADE 1

THISTLES VS SNAPDRAGONS

Thistles forward Sam Canning was a force on offense, scoring several times, supported by Kate Sullivan's pressure plays. Ashley Bruno played outstanding two way soccer, while Courtney Parsons and Kim James were suberb, despite wet conditions. Keeper Kerri Stinson was great in net. The Snapdragons offense was led by the fine efforts of Monica Folk, Emily Clapp and Meaghan Doherty. Christine Marques made some tough saves in goal, behind the tight defense of Kimberly Silvia and Jaclyn Smith.

POISON IVY VS TIGER LILIE

Poison Ivy put forth an aggressive offense, highlighted by the all around excellent moves of Taryn Martiniello, Danielli Bamberg and Katie Arsenault, and a beautiful goal scored by Danielle Robarge. Katelyn Maggio and Alicia Faulkner covered the defensive zone. Super goalkeeping by Addie Saloman and Katelyn Phaup, supported by the quick defense of Brittany Schofield, Alana Lacey and Lauren Heenan, set the tone for the Tiger Lilies. On offense, Shannell Courtois roared toward the goal, scoring for the Lilies.

THORNS VS HEMLOCKS

Michelle St. Aubin booted one home for the Thorns, as Caitlin Bresnahan and Stefanie Wiliams set a punishing offensive pace. Erika Belsky and Katelyn McFeeters blanketed the backfield, and keepers Ananda Stone, Maggie Sorrentino and Katey Magurie covered the net. Playing well together, the Hemlocks played excellent up and down soccer. Christina Luciano, Tamra Pollinger and Emily O'Donaghue moved the ball well, while Stephanie Seidman and Jessica Kindred excelled at both ends of the field.

BOYS GRADE 1

RIPTIDE VS HULKAMANIACS

Riptide battled wet weather and tough opponents, with Sean Eagan, Joshua Griffin and Shawn Fahey leading the rush. Richard PantanoII, Timothy Forte and James Savage teamed up for some delightful midfield action. Outstanding passing by the Hulkamaniacs led to goals by Eric Legro, James Couco and Michael Johnson. Michael Emery thwarted efforts in the defensive zone, while keepers Andrew Barrett and Jonathan were awesome.

NATURAL DISASTERS VS BUSHWACKERS

Great hustle up and down field led to Natural Disasters' Matthew Patalano's goal. Michael Pickett, Michael Caffarello and Chris Azevedo provided super field support. The Bushwackers' Derek Hanson lea a potent and balanced scoring attack, combining with Jesse Belding, Jake Andrewa and Mark Walsh to maintain constant offensive pressuer. Chris Welch provided an impenetrable defensive barrier.

SMOKIN GUNS VS LEGION OF DOOM

Smokin Guns were shorthanded on players, but not on determination, as forwards C.J. Jeanette and Kevin McDonough blasted in multiple goals. Brendan O'Riordan was outstanding in both offensive and defensive zones. Legion of Doom responded with two magnificent goals by Gregg Stewart, assisted by Tom Coughlin. Terrific team effort by both squads.

BULLS VS BRITISH BULLDOGS

Bulls forwards Josh Mayo and Derek DeRosa attacked with superb passing to score. Ryan Fahey, John Lippiello and Mark Manning were strong on defense, breaking up passes ans stopping the opponents' attacks. Joshua Bodah and Kenny Adams played magnificent games in net for the British Bulldogs, behind the amazing defense of Michael Wilson and Kyle Mendelson. Danny Metcalf and Robert Mahoney booted in goals, for a great come-from-behind tie match!

MACHO MEN VS POWER & GLORY

Vigorous play by Jerry Smith, heads-up reaction by Scott Bransfield and relentless hustle by Nathan Mercer proved to be a daunting combination for the Macho Men. Ryan Brander neatly shut down the defensive zone. Opening the second half with a bang, Daniel Silva popped in an early goal, followed quickly by another by Nathan Axelson. Power & Glory played well in this hard fought match.

GIRLS GRADE 2

EMERALDS VS DIAMONDS

Danielli Faro and Meghan Reardon played brilliantly in the backfield for the Emeralds in this defensive struggle. Keepers Kayla Fraser and Meghan Coyne made some near-impossible saves in net. The name of the game for the Diamonds was also defensive playing, especially by Allison Audette, Amber Warnick and Colleen Sampson. Kelly Lemke scored on a powerful pass by Mallory DeRosa. Great game!

GARNETS VS RUBIES

The Garnets pulled together well as a team, and spread out the goal scoring, as Jillian Guzinski, Amanda Miles, Ashley Ricando and Brittany Collins all put the ball in the net. Lauren Murphy and Jessica Brouillard ably handled the defense. The Rubies backfield was superbly covered by defender Caitlin Harrington and super keeper Ashley Poirier. Supported by teammates Courtney Brown, Erin Magee and Jacqueleen LaLiberte, Jen Comer blasted in the goals needed to tie this exciting game.

OPALS VS PEARLS

Danielle O'Shea booted in a beauty off a fast rebound to score for the Opals. Kim Gentile demonstrated tremendous passing skills, and combined with the excellent field play of Kaitlin Harris and Devin Giroux, maintained formidable pressure throughout the game. Katie Celli's defense was unbeatable, while Lauren Brassil made several unbelievable saves in net. The Pearls played excellent team soccer.

BOYS GRADE 2

HUSKIES VS EAGLES

Nicholas Yeomelakis, Danny Tobin and Michael Earls played a great two way game for the Huskies. Steven DiTullio and Michael Fields were outstanding in the goal. The Eagles scored on beautiful boots by Stephen Potcner and Zack Mayo. Tony Karalekas played a tremendous overall game, while keepers Stephen Potcner, Mike Sorrentino and Mike Fogarty were unbeatable.

BUCKEYES VS HURRICANES

The Buckeyes lit up the scoreboard when Matthew Phaup rushed the ball the entire length of the field, and blasted the ball into the net. Jim Good and Steve Tower played excellent field games. The Hurricanes' offense stormed the field, culminating in a goal by Dennis Fiumara, and several by Brian Caira. Great defense by Daniel Kline and Cris Crosby kept the opponents at bay, while Kevin Robilliard and Cris Crescenzo swarmed across the midfield.

GIRLS GRADE 3

SAPPHIRES VS CORALS

Sapphire keepers Kristina Ghafari and Amy McHale played brilliantly in goal. Sarah McGowan scored with the assistance of Laura Crawford and Stacy Giannokas. Jennifer Stone did a magnificent job at defense. The Corals played an exhausting game with no substitutes, demonstrating incredible versatility, as the players moved to different positions throughout the game. Ashley Robar booted a goal, while Michaela Rousseaux played inspired offense. Jen Breshan played solid defense, supporting fantastic keepers Lauren McGonagle and Emily Olson.

TOPAZ VS AQUAMARINES

Topaz forward Emily Largenton scored the tying goal, with Kaitlin Chakoian aggressively shooting and passing on offense. Lindsey Brown was exceptional at offense, and Lynn Vasseur stellar on D. Amalia Aruda was awesome in goal in the second half, stopping several shots far out in front of the net. The Aquamarines played their best despite being shorthanded, battling to a 1-1 tie. Nicole Tobin scored for the Aquamarines, on an assist from Nicole Meixler. Ashley McGrath added to the offensive pressure. Kerri Porter played a terrific game in net, aided by the stalwart defense of Sara Tang.

BOYS GRADE 3

49ERS VS SEAHAWKS

A goal by John DiPaolo highlighted the 49ers' offense this week. Eddie Kaufman made several astounding saves as goalie. Terrific teamwork by David Balnco, Nick Barrett, Jason Axelson, Jonathan Langonie and Christopher Waisnor rounded out a super game. The Seahawks burst onto the field with offensive determination, resulting in goals by Matt Jeannette, Brendan Strem and Joe Pino. Greg Boland played an exceptional field game.

RAIDERS VS PATRIOTS

The Raiders scored on big boots by forwards Michael Adams and Victor Dellisola. Excellent defense by Daniel Farrell was capped by the superb goalkeeping of Matt Clarkin and Jack McDonough. Dan Heenan, Joe Morello and Mike Thibault set a bruising pace for the Patriots, hustling up and down field. Continuing pressure resulted in a goal for Matt Stewart.

COED GRADE 4 & 5

CELTICS VS ROWDIES

Joe Downs booted in the Celtics score, assisted by Jacqueline Grady. Keepers Chris Hall and Joe Downs were outstanding. Although the Celtics were short handed, great team effort by Patrick Schofield, Devin Boyle and Christine Morello paid off. The Rowdies played an excellent defensive game, led by the hard work of Daniello Sullivan, Brad McIssac, Jeff Rebelo and Meredith Bransfield. Jenna Ciaramella and Jared Hackett pressed hard throughout the match.

FLASH VS NUGGETS

The stifling defense of Jill Stira and Sarah Cheek was the launching pad for the Flash's potent attack. Dan Travis and Chris Ruggeiro scored for the Flash, while Heather Travis and Dan Cwiekowski provided an offensive spark with creative passing. Steffanie Strazerre and Danny Shibilia led the Nuggets' efforts in this tough defensive struggle. Super two way play by Joel Guzinski ensured continuous action and excitement.

TRAILBLAZERS VS LAKERS

A great, never-give-up attitude led to fabulous goals by Graham Pazdziorko and Sean Collier, assisted by Kim Strazzere, Melissa Michols and Jennifer Earls. Numerous key saves in goal by Stephen Johnson and Athen Karalekas preserved the tie. The Lakers determined offense, led by Shane Gaffney, Steven Iorio and Mike Lancellotte, pressured the opponents, and culminated in two goals by Peter Brownell. In the defensive zone, Cindy Craig detered the opposing forwards, and Mike Bell covered the rest with stellar goaltending.

POWER SOURCE VS KNICKS

Travis Mill played a strong game overall, with two assists to Power Source scorers Branden Kelly and Matt Brander. Excellent defense was provided by Erin and Emily. Unbelievable stops by Knicks keepers James Little and Megan Grenier held the backfield. Super up and down action by Ryan Jeannette, Christine Shukis, Megan Hand, John Broussard and Daniel Patalano.

COED GRADE 6,7 & 8

ARGENTINA VS ITALY

Nicole Silva and Brad Goguen led Argentina's forward thrust, pressing past the opposing defense, and generating the opportunity for Patrick Graham's heart-stopping goal. Billy McGarry held off the opponents with aggressive blocks, while Eric Meixler hustled at midfield. Italy played a great all around game both offensively and defensively. Keepers C.J. Masey and Jason Hassey virtually closed down the net. On offense, Mark Sollazzo, Laura McInerny, Mellisa Banks and Katie Hickey all booted home scores.

USA VS BRAZIL

Tim Robillard did an exceptional job covering USA's net, supported by the fabulous field play of Sheri Tremblay, Stephanie Winn and Chrissy Brown. Taking advantage of strong up and down play, as well as fine team passing, Chris Ruggerio and Danielli Cleary broke free and both scored. Brazil was all offense this week, led by the fast and furious play of forwards Rob Varey and Mike Maleszyk. Pat Brassil, Mark Stewart, Rich Palizzolo and Brian Martiniello continued in the aggressive vein, all booting in goals for Brazil.

Marching Band Festival

By HARRIS CUSICK

If you enjoyed seeing the country's best drum and bugle corps and marching bands perform during Wakefield's annual Fourth of July parade, chances are you'll also enjoy "An Evening of Music Under the Stars" at Landrigan Field this Saturday evening October 14.

That's when twelve of the regions top marching bands, including three award winning Middlesex East area high school marching bands from Reading, Tewksbury and Wakefield will be joined by the University of Massachusetts Lowell Marching Band During performances here.

The 1995 Massachusetts Instrumental Conductors Association Northeast District Marching Band Festival at Landrigan Field begins at 6 pm. The festival, hosted by Wakefield High, features over 600 talented musicians from 11 high schools performing exquisitely choreographed, visually colorful and exciting musical routines that are adjudicated by MICA officials.

Reading, Tewksbury and Wakefield will be joined by high school bands from Abington, Acton-Boxborough Regional, Haverhill, Methuen, Newburyport, Norwood, and Salem, Massachusetts and by Maine's Biddeford High School's Tiger Pride' Marching Band as they are judged against MICA standards for awards in four divisions.

The UMass Lowell Marching Band will give an exhibition performance prior to the Festivals 9:30 pm Awards Ceremony. UMass Lowell performs at competitions, parades and half time shows. Each year the band's music is drawn from the classics, jazz, rock and popular idioms utilizing original music and visual arrangements.

An Evening of Music Under the Stars is family entertainment at its best. Tickets at $4 adults and $3 students and senior citizens may be purchased at the the gate. An early arrival is recommended to obtain preferred seating.

Tewksbury High School's Marching Band, directed by Roger Whittlesey, had a memorable Columbus Day weekend when in a matter of 17 hours Saturday the band traveled to UMass Amherst to perform at the University's Annual Band Day and then had to rush back to Wilmington's Shriners Auditorium to compete in an Eastern Massachusetts Band Association competition where it captured every award in its division.

The band took home five trophies for Best Music, Best Percussion, Best Color Guard, Best Drum Major and for finishing first in Division I in Saturday night's competition hosted by Billerica High School.

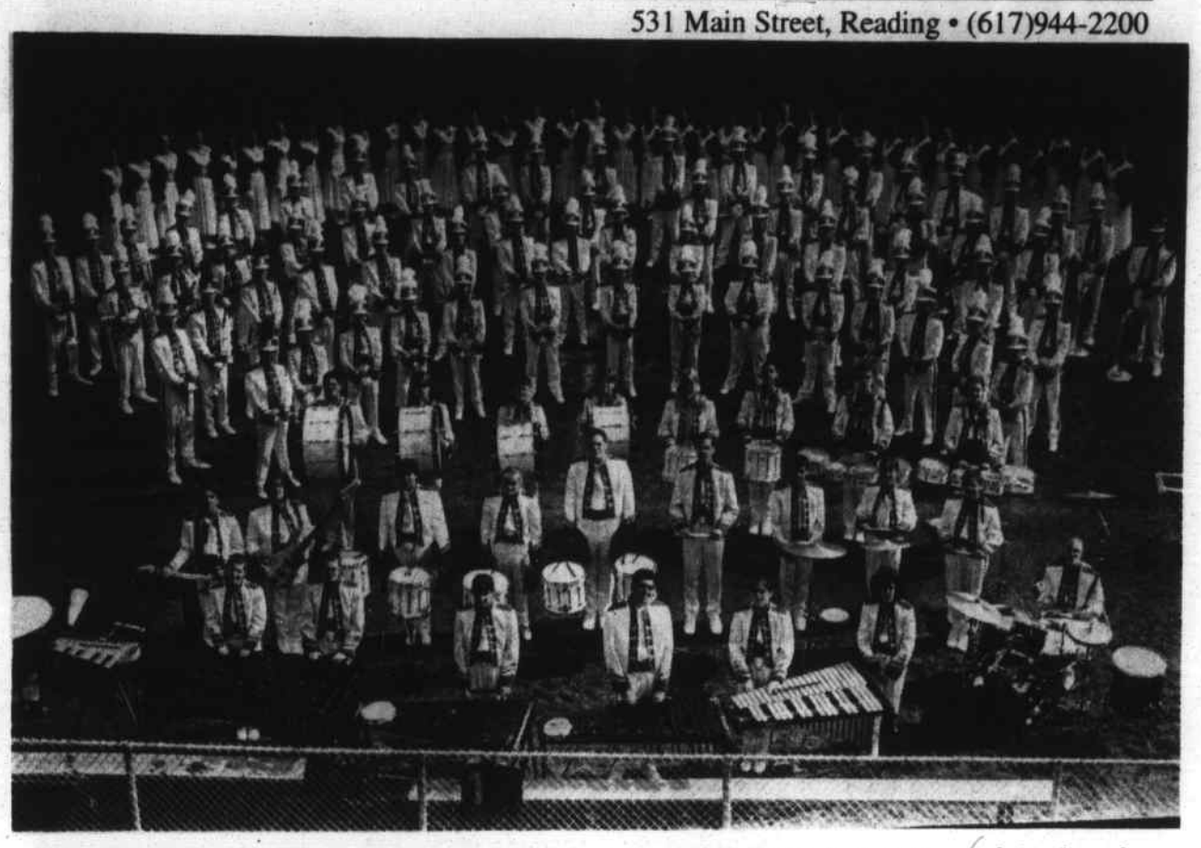

During an interview with Middlesex East, Tewksbury's band director Roger Whittlesey said, "Over 3,000 high school musicians from 60 high schools joined the UMass 'Minutemen' Marching Band in a spectacular half time show during Saturday's UMass-UNH football game." Whittlesey said, "The entire field was covered with musicians. It was a long day. We were up at 5 am, on busses by six and arrived in Amherst at eight. We had to be in Wilmington by 6 pm and it was eleven o'clock when we got back to Tewksbury."

Sunday afternoon Reading Memorial High School's Marching Band, directed by David Bunten, won the Andover & Lynnfield High School's Invitational Marching Band Competition sponsored by the New England Scholastic Band Association at Andover's Lovely Field.

Wakefield High School's Marching Band, directed by Kimberly Smith, gave an exhibition performance prior to Sunday's awards ceremony where Reading won top awards for High Music, Best Percussion and Best Drum Major while finishing first among Division IV bands.

The Wakefield band was coming off a superb performance where it finished first among 14 bands from four New England states at a Maine Band Directors Association competition

Bands to S-4

WAKEFIELD HIGH SCHOOL'S 'WARRIOR' MARCHING BAND and its band director Kimberly Smith host 11 of the region's top marching bands for "An Evening of Music Under the Stars" at Landrigan Field Saturday night. The annual MICA Northeast District Marching Band Festival is one of the region's most popular autumn music festivals. The show begins at 6 pm.

Have some fun and win some $$$

It's that pizza time of year, and we invite you to pick a piece of pizza. As part of our search for the best in the "Middlesex East" area, you get to fill in the blanks and roll in the dough.

The highly rewarding 1995 M.E. Award (say it fast) season begins today, and works like this:

Every single ballot (an original to be found somewhere in the vicinity of this page) cast for your favorite kind of pizza and favorite pizza place makes you eligible for one of the following:

1) Every vote cast makes you eligible for the grand prize of $100, in cash.

2) Every vote for a favorite kind of pizza makes you eligible for the $50 pot - if you happened to vote for the kind of pizza which proves to be the favorite of all the M.E. readers who vote.

3) Almost the same deal - and another $50 prize - when you vote for your favorite pizza spot - if that spot is the one chosen by our judges based on our readers' top three choices.

Judges?

Pie are square and pie are round. New this contest is the opportunity for you to be the judge.

When the votes are tallied and the favorites known, we'll select a panel of five taste-testers at random from among the voters.

Dr. Vasilescu joins Burlington Ob/Gyn

DR. VASILESCU

Winchester Hospital announced that Ana-Cristina Vasilescu, M.D. of Belmont, a board certified obstetrician/gynecologist, has joined its staff. She has joined Burlington Ob/Gyn Associates, with offices at 101 Cambridge Street, Burlington and 5 Water Street in Arlington.

Dr. Vasilescu, earned her B.A. and M.D. from Boston University School of Medicine. She completed her residency in obstetrics and gynecology at St. Luke's/Roosevelt Hospital Center in New York City. During that time, she also focused on high risk obstetrics, hysteroscopy, laparaoscopy and CO2 laser surgery.

Prior to joining Winchester Hospital, Dr. Vasilescu was an affiliate staff member at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston and has been a staff member at Emerson Hospital. She served as a clinical instructor in obstetrics, gynecology and reproductive biology with the Faculty of Medicine at Harvard University from July 1991 until July 1994.

She is a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, Middlesex Medical Society and the Armenian American Medical Association. She speaks Armenian, Romanian and is conversant in Spanish.

Dr. Vasilescu will be accepting patients at the Burlington and Arlington offices. She can be reached at 617-272-4667.

Natural history walks for adults

The Massachusetts Audubon Society's Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary in Topsfield is offering a number of autumn natural history walks for adults in October. Space is limited, so pre registration is required. For registration information, call the Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary at 508-887-9264.

Birds and Botany: Wednesdays, October 18; 9:30-11:30 am. Join us for walks through unique and beautiful habitats. At Cedar Pond Area in Wenham on October 11, we'll walk along woodland trails and stop at the bog to study its specialized plants and animals. On October 18 they explore the woodlands and unique areas of Wildcat Conservation Area in Boxford, once home to wolves, bobcats and black bears.

Urban Wilds: Exploring Lynn Woods; Saturday, October 14; 9 am - noon. the 2,200 acre Lynn Woods Reservations has been home to wolves, pirates, spiritualist mediums, rattlesnakes, an endangered dragonfly, and was the center of study by a venerable group of naturalists in the mid 1800's. Thanks to the efforts of a dedicated "Friends" group, the Reservation is a safe and fascinating, but still little known, natural gem of the North Shore.

Fall Migrant Birds of Ipswich River Sanctuary: Sunday, October 15; 7:30 - 10:30 am. (Rain Date: Sunday, October 22). Learn to identify a variety of migrant bird species on this bird walk through the Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary in Topsfield. Fall warblers will be of special interest. This birding experience is designed to help you learn more about avian natural history and behavior. Pre registration is required.

I have been a wife and mother for 42 years. I've spent half a lifetime taking care of others. At the Winchester Hospital Breast Care Center I found out what it's like to have someone take care of me. As soon as I arrived, I was introduced to my nurse coordinator. I tried hard not to let on I was scared. But she knew. So we talked about everything. What my concerns were, how she would coordinate my treatment, the best way to talk to my family. I leaned on her a lot. I thought a 68 year old woman shouldn't have to lean on anyone. I was wrong. About The Towns
by Phyllis Nissen

Here's an eye-opener for you

The Inn thing to do

The Wilmington Chamber of Commerce will feature "Women in Business" on Tuesday, October 17th from 8 a.m. to 9:30 a.m.

Speakers include Teresa Tagliente, vice president of Tage Inn, a family-owned hotel in Andover and Carol Beaudoin, a Mary Kay Cosmetics consultant, who will show a side presentation on "Image of Style."

The meeting will take place at the Tage Inn, 131 River Road, Andover - Exit 45 off I-93. Members and their guests are $10.00; non-members are $15.00.

It's being billed as an "eye opener breakfast meeting" but as any woman in business knows - be she at work or at home - 8 a.m. marks the middle of the morning at least.

"This is a great opportunity to network and introduce yourselves to each other," says Midge Gravelese. "Everyone is welcome."

Call the Chamber office at (508)657-7211 to reserve your spot - and your coffee.

Olde New England Crafts Show at Austin

The Friends of Austin Preparatory School in Reading will hold their eighteenth annual "Olde New England Crafts Show" at the school on Saturday, October 14, from 10 am to 4 pm. Austin Prep is located at 101 Willow Street in Reading.

The show will feature the work of over 100 New England professional crafters. Many will demonstrate their specialities, and all will have items for sale. It is expected that the show will include samples of Christmas decorations, handmade dolls, raffia scarecrows, wooden toys, baskets, dry and silk arrangements, quilts, and much more. A Country Kitchen snack bar will be open all day for the convenience of the public.

Admission to the show will be $3 for adults, $1 for children and senior citizens. All proceeds from the Crafts Show will go to benefit the many educational and student activity programs at Austin Prep. The general public is cordially invited to attend. Ample parking is available.

Carnival comes to Stone Zoo

It's time again for the annual Fall Fling Carnival to benefit Friends of Stone Zoo. It will be held in the zoo parking lot from October 12-15 starting at 10am to 9pm each day.

This popular event gets even better by featuring a "Ride Special." Carnival patrons can pay one price to ride all rides from 5-9 pm every day.

"We've got a great event planned for kids of all ages," said Amusement Company owner, Sam Pino. Pino and family are local residents and longtime supporters of Stone Zoo. "There are some exciting new rides and attractions," boasted Pino, "as well as the old favorites."

This could be the last chance until spring to enjoy those traditional carnival treats.

Any questions may be directed to Friends of Stone Zoo at 617-438-7459.

Fall gardening is speaker topic

Paul Parent, the popular radio host of "The Gardening Show," returns to the Meeting House on the Lynnfield Common, Monday evening, October 23rd, at 7:30 pm.

His topic will be "Fall Gardening in New England-Putting Your Garden to Bed."

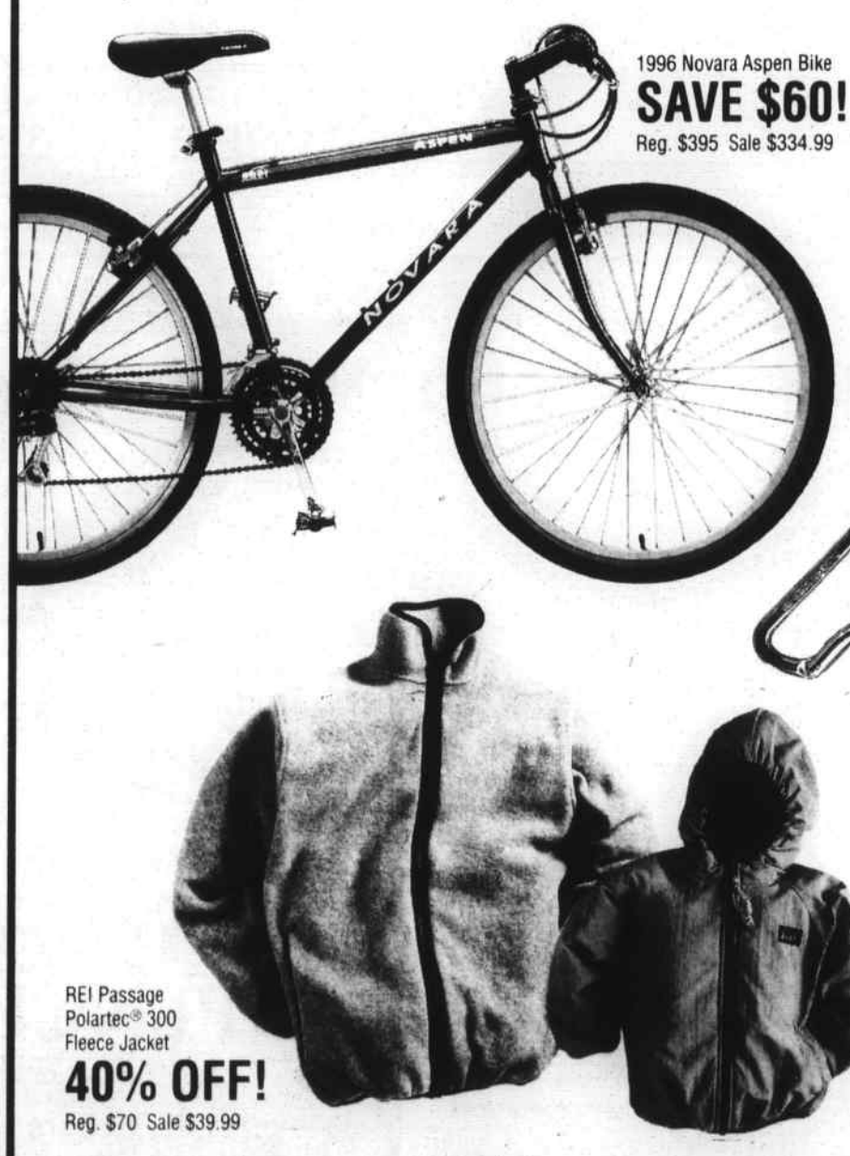

The Village Garden Club of Lynnfield will provide light refreshments. Ticket are $6. For more information or ticket reservations please call 617-334-4337, 617-334-5102 or 617-334-3062.

Violence in movies forum at Kennedy

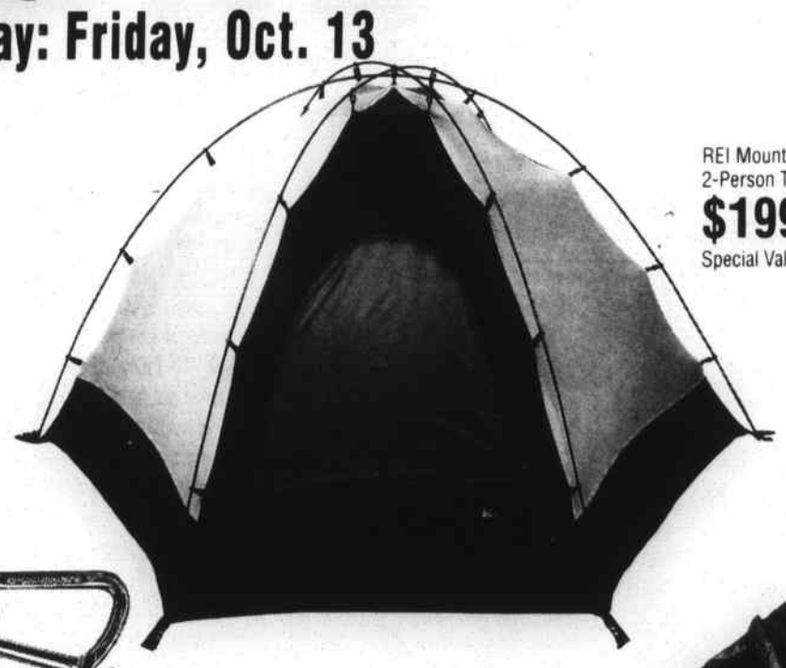

On Tuesday October 24, at 5:30 pm, the Kennedy Library will continue its Fall 1995 Forum series with Violence in Movies: Conflicts Between the Standards of Society and the Entertainment Industry. The forum is free and open to the public. Reservations are recommended and can be made by calling 617-929-4571.

Among those scheduled to participate are Michael Medved, author of Hollywood vs. America. The panel will be moderated by Peter Keough film editor of the Boston Phoenix. Debate topics include: government regulations on the use of violence, film maker first amendment rates, the link between make believe violence and real life violence, the responsibility of film makers to respond to what the public wants to see.

Supplement to Daily Times – Chronicle (Woburn, Reading, Winchester, Burlington, Wakefield), Lynnfield Villager, No. Reading Transcript, Wilmington & Tewksbury Town Crier, Stoneham Independent, Daily News Mercury (Malden, Medford, Melrose)

READING MEMORIAL HIGH SCHOOL'S MARCHING BAND directed by David Bunten will perform its spectacular "Music from Carmina Burana" show, with music arrangements by Dan Lutz, at Saturday night's MICA Northeast District Marching Band Festival at Wakefield High's Landrigan Field.

THE AWARD-WINNING TEWKSBURY HIGH SCHOOL MARCHING BAND joined the University of New Hampshire 'Wildcat' Marching Band and 15 high school bands during a spectacular half-time show Sept. 15 at UNH. Drum Major Gloria King is shown displaying a certificate of appreciation that UNH band director Chris Humphrey presented the band. Tewksbury High's band director Roger Whittlesey and Humphrey are shown standing (l-r). Tewksbury is scheduled to kick off Saturday evening's MICA show with a 6 pm performance.

Bands From S-1

held October 1 at Biddeford High's Waterhouse Field.

Landrigan Field's concession stand will open at 5 pm Saturday night to accommodate spectators attending one of the region's most popular autumn music festivals. The evening's menu will feature home cooked foods including home made chili, clam chowder, nachos and cheese, pizza and char grilled barbecued hamburgers and hot dogs. A variety of delicious home made desserts, hot chocolate, coffee and soda will also be available at family prices.

A Wakefield spokesperson said, "You are cordially invited to a glorious autumn 'Evening of Music Under the Stars,' featuring good food, great entertainment and good company. The MICA Marching Band Festival is a 'must see' show you won't want to miss. Be sure to mark your family calendar, 5 pm October 14, Landrigan Field, Wakefield."

'Christmas' auditions

The Lynnfield Spotlighters will hold auditions for the musical, "A Christmas Carol," on Sunday, October 15th and Monday, October 16th from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. at the Trinity Baptist Church, 227 Summer St., Lynnfield.

Adults and children, ages seven and older are invited to bring sheet music and come prepared to sing 16 bars of their favorite songs.

For more information, call Judy at (617)334-3249 or Susan at (508)664-1425.

Time to Park

Lowell National Historical Park - just around the corner - is seeking volunteers for several positions, all of which are tailored to the park's needs and each volunteer's availability.

Openings include: staffing visitor information desks and special exhibits; helping maintain the park library; guiding visitors through exhibits; helping keep historic structures and grounds clean; sharing knowledge of Lowell and its history; assisting with administrative and clerical duties and computer operations; and providing photographic and video services.

Training is provided; some volunteer jobs require specific schedules while others involve flex-time on the part of the volunteer. Many volunteers, for example, work one day a week, almost full time; others volunteer as a group for a specific project.

The amount of time given is entirely up to the volunteer as long as it meets the needs of the position selected. Volunteers are needed throughout the year.

For more information, call (508)970-5000.

Take a pleasant fall foliage train through the Berkshires

The Massachusetts Bay Railroad enthusiasts will operate a special Fall Foliage Train from Boston through the Berkshires to Albany, New York, on Saturday, October 14. Passengers may board at South Station or Back Bay Station in Boston, Wellesley Square, West Natick, Worcester or Springfield.

While in Albany, passengers can experience a two hour riverboat cruise, traveling south on the Hudson River toward Castleton on Hudson. Rail fares are $55 for adults and $28 for children aged 4 through 12 ($60/$33 for orders received after Sept. 24); the Hudson River cruise is an additional $9 per person.

Further information and an order form may be obtained by sending a SASE to: Mass. Bay RRE, P.O. Box 4245-BV, Andover, MA 01810-0814; by calling 617-489-5277; or by fax at 508-470-2066.

No Shore Women breakfast meeting

North Shore Women In Business invites women to attend its next breakfast meeting on Thursday, October 19 at Jakes Restaurant in Danvers. The cost is $8 pre paid members, $10 at the door and for guests. Registration is at 7:15 am and the program begins at 7:30 am. Presenting that morning will be Sydney Rice, President of The Coaching Company.

Ms. Rice will introduce us to the tools of her work and start us on discovering our personal core values for satisfaction in our jobs.

For more information on upcoming events or membership, please call North Shore Women in Business at 508-532-1175.

Meet the SelectFew

The recently elected 1995-96 Middlesex County Selectmen's Association officers are Nancy Cirone of North Reading, treasurer; Sally Hoyt of Reading, vice president; Arthur Doyle of Billerica, president; Barr Fuller of Pepperill, secretary, Thomas Conlon of Tewksbury, past president; Diane Allen of Wilmington, director; Joe Piantedosi of Bedford, director and past president; Richard Wilde of Burlington, clerk; and Geoff Beckwith of Reading, executive director.

Not to tell tales out of school but ... Beckwith's other supremely important job is co-editor of Reading's Barrows Elementary School newsletter - which we can't wait to see.

"About The Towns" covers recent events in the 13-town Middlesex East area. Because Middlesex East deadlines are early, please check the front sections of this paper for up-to-date information about your city or town. We also welcome original material - please send it to Phyllis Nissen, "About The Towns," Middlesex East Supplement, Box 240, Reading, MA 01867.

COOLEST MOONS OF THE SOLAR SYSTEM

Some are pock marked with giant craters. Others are covered with frost and ice. And one has a volcano that spews stinky sulphur! What are they? They're the weird and wonderful moons of the planets in our Solar System.

Persons can learn all about these fascinating objects at "Stranger New Worlds: The Coolest Moons of the Solar System," a special free program for children on Friday evening, October 27, at the Harvard Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics (CfA).

The talk, presented by astronomer Tania Ruiz of the CfA, is geared toward children aged six through 12, but adults are welcome too.

The program will be given twice, first at 7 pm and again at 8:15 pm, in the CfA's Phillips Auditorium, 60 Garden Street, Cambridge. Each presentation will be followed by telescopic observing from the observatory roof, weather permitting. Visitors are advised to dress accordingly.

Admission to the Children's Night program is free but seating is limited and advance tickets are required. To obtain tickets, call the CfA'S Public Affairs Office at 617-495-7461. Tickets will be given for one show only with a limit of four tickets per caller, including adults.

STUDENT EXCHANGE SEEKS FAMILIES

International Student Exchange, Inc. (ISE) is presently seeking host families for students from seventeen different countries. Students between the ages of 15 and 18 are carefully screened by ISE for suitability. They bring their own spending money and are covered by health insurance.

While here the student attends the local high school and is expected to bear his or her share of household responsibilities. The length of stay can range from six months to a full year. An ISE representative will help select a student from numerous student applications which include family photos and biographical essays.

For more information on being an ISE host family or on becoming a Representative with opportunities for travel, paid expenses and commissions, call-1-800-233-4678.

"Mass Hysteria" in Saugus

THE CAST OF "MASS. HYSTERIA" includes Mary McDermott, Tom Berry, Wendy Heyman and Charlie McCarthy. The production appears every Thursday evening at Prince's Restaurant in Saugus.

Mass. Hysteria!, a new musical comedy which takes a satirical look at the Bay State will play at select suburban locations, including an ongoing Thursday night engagement at Prince's Restaurant in Saugus.

There is never a shortage of material in this parody of songs poking fun at the people, politics and events in Massachusetts. This four actor musical takes a hilarious look at life in the Bay State from "The Bulger Family," to "Cheers," to The Big Dig and big hair on Revere Beach. This hysterical production has branched out to the South Shore from its regular Sunday evening performances at The Comedy Connection in Boston.

Charlie Hall, a writer/director, is the creative force behind Mass. Hysteria!: For the past four years he has been running a similar show in Rhode Island called Ocean State Follies that has received commercial and critical acclaim.

Charlie has performed as a stand-up comic since 1980 and has appeared on several national TV shows, including the Joan Rivers Show, Caroline's Comedy Hour, Evening At the Improv, and Star Search '93, where he was a semi-finalist.

The four person cast includes Stoneham native Tom Berry plus Wendy Heyman, Mary McDermott and Charlie McCarthy.

Who's cookin' at Reading High?

This is the Middlesex East "School Notes" idea of the week because ... well, check it out for yourselves:

"Believe it or not, the much anticipated senior year is here!" note the most progressive parents in the Class of '96. "As parents of seniors, we may be experiencing mixed emotions about our children moving on in life. A group has thought of a way to get together and share conversation and laughter over a meal to ease some of our anxieties."

It's been done before at Reading High and it was a smashing success.

"We have planned a progressive dinner for the parents and guardians of the graduating Class of 1996. This dinner will consist of a salad, a main course, and dessert at different host houses throughout the evening of Saturday, November 4, 1995. We will begin at 6:30 p.m. at the Senior Citizen Center (next to the Reading Police Station) for hors d'oeuvres. We will also distribute an itinerary for the evening. From there we will proceed to our assigned host homes to enjoy our first course.

"The people we dine with will be randomly selected for each course so that we will get a chance to meet as many parents as possible. In order to allow hosts to participate in all courses of the progressive dinner, we will be asking members of the senior class to act as servers at the various host homes to help with setting up, serving, and cleaning up. Because this school-related event requires student involvement and driving between courses, the evening will be alcohol-free.

"Let us know if you can attend and-or volunteer your home. Please keep in mind that for every 10 attendees, we will need one host home per course. Thus, we will need a large number of homes volunteered to make this progressive dinner a success. Choose the style (buffet or sit-down dinner) that suits you best.

"The cost of the evening will be $10.00 per person. We will donate the net proceeds to the Class of 1996 to help defray upcoming expenses. Please fill in the attached form and mail it along with your check in the enclosed envelope by October 14th.

"If you have any questions, please feel free to call: Joan Ensminger ..., Donna Martinson (Reading High PTA president)..., Cheryl Flatley ..., or Rose Hines.

"We look forward to a wonderful evening with you!"

Pajama party anyone?

Principal matters

Those educators - and CEOs - who are totally happy and comfortable in their current jobs should flash forward and ignore the following: the Wilmington Public Schools are searching for a principal.

The position, according to an ad in a recent "Globe," requires "a dynamic, educational leader with a demonstrated record of accomplishment in the secondary curriculum and organizational area. This is a 640-student suburban school with a staff of 50."

The salary range is $62K to $69K with "excellent fringe benefits."

Send your resume, three letters of reference, a transcript, and verification of certification to Dr. Geraldine A. O'Donnell, Superintendent of Schools, Wilmington Public Schools, 161 Church St., Wilmington, MA 01886.

The closing date is October 23rd.

October 12-15

WWII exhibit at Burlington Mall

In commemoration of World War II, the National Archives exhibit, "A People At War; World War II Service of U.S. Military and Civilians" opens at the Burlington Mall's lower level October 12-15, free to the public. Take a stroll through WWII, from it's origin to it's end and understand the contributions of the people, both civilian and military, whose efforts brought the war to a close.

Held Thursday through Sunday, the National Archives' spectacular WWII exhibit is comprised of over 50 different subjects and events that include documents taken from the official wartime records of military personnel and civilian employees of the U.S. government, photographs from collections of the National Archives, and military diary accounts and logs.

Burlington Mall patrons of all ages will be well enriched, if not touched, by the array of documented information and beautiful photographs of and relating to the war. The exhibit will chronologically, panel by panel, take you through the war from prelude to the war, to Pearl Harbor, to fighting back, to D-Day, and to the end of the war and after.

Among the highlights of the exhibit are:

The handwritten letter from George H.W. Bush on his 18th birthday, applying for a commission as a naval aviator, along with a recommendation from his school's headmaster.

The entry in the Medical Officer's Log at the Pearl Harbor Hospital, written while the attack was taking place.

Individual photographs and biographical date on the six men who raised the American flag on Iwo Jima;

Records salvaged from the sunken U.S.S. Arizona;

A copy of the bill proposed in Congress to pay a $100,000 bonus to John Garland, the War Department civilian employee who developed the M-1 rifle;

A comprehensive collection of documents, photographs, and artifacts pertaining to the Women's Auxiliary Ferrying Squadron (WAFS), later designated as the Women Air Force Service Pilots (WASPs).

A hand drawn map showing the location at which Army PFC Richard E. Cowan heroically covered his company's withdrawal in the face of an overwhelming tank infantry assault during the Battle of the Bulge; and documentation concerning Brig. Gen. Benjamin O. Davis Sr., the Army's first African American general officer, to include a description of his efforts to address existing racial problems in the military.

The ship's log from the U.S.S. Missouri on the day of the Japanese surrender.

Prestige Gallery

A star is born in Danvers

Prestige Gallery is proud to announce that they have been designated by Christopher Radko as a "Rising Star" gallery. It is an amazing achievement, after only eighteen months of representing Radko. They are the only Rising Star in Massachusetts

As a Rising Star gallery, Prestige Gallery carries a complete line of Christopher Radko Christmas Ornaments, garlands, Santa Containers and his soon to be released first book celebrating his tenth year in business.

Prestige Gallery is having a pre-Christmas show with the Christopher Radko representative, Diana Lambert. It will be a sneak preview of 19 new 1996 ornaments available for purchase plus the ornament that is sold only at events. It is a special colorway called "Lucy's Favorite." The date for this exciting show is Saturday, October 14. In the meantime, come in soon as many pieces sell out early and very often they can't be reordered.

Celebrating the tenth year in business has been a milestone for Christopher Radko. Christopher is considered the foremost Christmas ornament designer in the world today. His mouthblown, handpainted ornaments are all made in Poland Germany, Italy or Czechoslavakia. They are sought after by collectors all over the world. With the publication of his first book featuring every Radko designed ornament, the opportunity exists for you to identify your ornaments and to search for some of the older ones.

What's fair is fair

There will be no rain on Thursday evening, October 12 because that's the night of the 12th annual Cooperative College Fair at Reading High's Walter Hawkes Field House, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

The fair is sponsored by Austin Prep (in Reading) and Our Lady of Nazareth Academy (in Wakefield) as well as North Reading, Reading, Stoneham, and Wakefield high schools.

All students and parents are welcome - bring bags in which to tote away the tons of catalogs and if you don't plan to arrive early, do plan to wear good walking shoes.

A teaser

"On the first day back for teachers this school year - one week after the School Committee had first discussed the wearing of 'coed naked' shirts by students," reads the blurb in the "Lynnfield Villager," "a Middle School custodian showed up for work wearing just such a shirt." More later from Lynnfield.

If you'd like to read about your favorite school, student or teacher in "School Notes," please send school newsletters and other relevant information to Phyllis Nissen, "School Notes," Middlesex East Supplement, Box 240, Reading, MA 01867.

Plan ahead

It's bulb time!

Traditionally considered a time for raking leaves, carving pumpkins, hay rides, and football games, autumn is also the best time for planting spring-flowering bulbs. Planted during the fall in flower beds, rock gardens, along a hedge or fence, or in the lawn, flowering bulbs are a great way to add a splash of color to any landscape.

Easy to plant and cultivate, bulb blossoms will thrive next spring if they are given a hospitable growing environment and are properly groomed this fall for winter dormancy. Bulbs should also be protected from foraging animals by soaking them in a repellent, such as Ro-Pel Bulb Protector prior to planting.

Bulb Varieties

The most difficult part of planting spring-flowering bulbs is choosing from among the hundreds of species and hybrids available. Some of the most sought after varieties include:

• Tulips - The most popular of all spring-flowering bulbs, tulips office a wide range of choices in height, color, shape, and bloom time.

• Narcissus - More commonly known as daffodils, this winter-hardy flower comes in many shapes and colors. These bulbs develop extensive root systems in the fall and provide better flowering results in cooler climates.

• Muscari - Nicknamed "Grape Hyacinth," these tiny, bright purple flowers multiply quickly and resemble upturned grapes. Flowers stay in bloom one to three weeks and thrive in sun or shade.

• Chiondoxa - Commonly known as "Glory-of-the-Snow," this early spring flower blooms in loose clusters of white, blue or pink, and can vary from three to ten inches in height. This bulb is an ideal plant for borders and rock gardens.

Planting Tips

Whether they are planted individually or in groups, spring-flowering bulbs will thrive and flourish if you follow these few simple planting procedures:

1. Prepare the Soil - Once the planting bed has been selected, turn the soil over to a depth of about ten inches to aerate the site and give the bulb roots ample room to grow. Quick to rot if left in standing water, spring-flowering bulbs flourish best in light, well-drained soil. Where necessary, condition soil with fertilizer.

2. Plant at Proper Depth - Using a bulb planter or trowel to dig the holes, the general rule of thumb is to plant bulbs to a depth of three times their overall height. With the soil removed to the required depth, lightly press bulbs into place bottom side down (the flat side is the bottom), return the soil and water thoroughly.

3. Protect Against Pests - Bulbs are a tasty treat for many hungry creatures, such as mice, moles, squirrels and chipmunks. To keep these animals from making your garden into a restaurant, soak each bulb in Ro-Pel Protector. This safe and effective animal repellent works by giving any bulb-feasting creature a "bitter" reminder that the property is off limits

To ensure that hungry animals don't return to feed, Ro-Pel is formulated with a slightly medicinal tag scent. After one or two visits to your garden, animals quickly associate the scent to the subsequent vile taste in their mouth. As a result, raccoons, chipmunks, squirrels and other animals can be literally trained to leave your garden alone and move on to someone else's.

4. Groom with Caution - If you already have blossoms, the best way to ensure that bulbs flower again next year is to "deadhead" (remove the dying blossom) the wilting plant at season's end. But allow foliage to wither on its own without pruning. This is crucial, as stems continue to create and store food for winter dormancy and for eventual use in the spring. Once in place, most bulb gardens can be left to multiply and flourish. With a little time and effort this fall, flowering bulbs will provide colorful, bright blossoms next spring and year-round.

FALL PREP FOR SPRING COLOR - Fall is the time to plant bulbs so that spring will bring with it a rainbow of flowering blossoms. Soaking bulbs in Ro-Pel Bulb Protector, a safe and effective animal repellent, will give the bulbs their best chance to successfully bloom.

GIVE YOUR YARD A WINTER COAT, IN FALL - Homeowners can protect their yards from the damaging effects of winter rigors by using a landscape fabric, such as WeedBlock from Easy Gardener, Inc. around the base of trees, plants and shrubs.

Dress your yard for winter

The warmth and vibrant colors of summer become a distant memory, gloves and scarves come off closet shelves, and thick woolen sweaters and worn jeans reclaim their places within our wardrobes. Approaching winter months bring colder weather and bitter winds, and during this time of the year, it is necessary to shield our bodies from the harsher elements in the interest of preserving health and well-being. However, the care with which your prepare your own body for cold weather should also be taken for the living environment you have created - especially your outside surroundings.

Dropping temperatures are particularly harsh on the plants, trees and shrubs you have carefully planted and the landscape you have taken the time to develop. Strong winds, frozen rain, hail, snow and frozen soil can all wreak havoc on exposed limbs and branches, evergreen foliage and plant roots.

The weight of accumulated snow or the strength of the winter storm can easily break branches, and if the soil surrounding a root system freezes, roots can be snapped apart as the soil shifts and expands (known as "heaving"). Evergreens are easily damaged as they remain green throughout the year, and without the ability to absorb adequate amounts of moisture from the frozen ground, their foliage will turn brown and die.

So what should the do-it-yourself gardener do to avoid these problems? Easy Gardener, Inc., a leading manufacturer of lawn and garden products, has a number of suggestions so as not to let Old Man Winter get the better of you and your precious landscape. In order to protect the soil surrounding your plant life as well as the roots that lay underneath, you must insulate the ground and keep soil warm while maintaining an even level of moisture within and around the plant.

The traditional method of protecting soil consists of laying down ripped sheets of black plastic with bark or mulch laid on top. But while this may block weeds from growing, it is an impermeable material that also blocks out the air, moisture and vital nutrients that your plants need to survive.

You need an alternative to black plastic, such as WeedBlock landscape fabric, available at most lawn and garden centers and hardware stores. WeedBlock is a strong, nonwoven synthetic fabric that has the ability to block weeds and sunlight, and will last for years, not rip or disintegrate like black plastic. The new "microfunnel technology" used by Easy Gardener has resulted in a landscape fabric with thousands of tiny microfunnels that taper at the fabric's bottom, allowing the even exchange of air and steady flow of water through to the soil. Also available most lawn and garden an hardware stores, CloudCover is a non-toxic, biodegradable, inexpensive and easy way to seal and preserve plant foliage. Antitranspirant sprays coat the stem and leaves of plants such as evergreens, shrubs and young trees, with a protective film.

This film holds in moisture, and protects plants from the dangers of sudden drastic temperature drops and drying winds. You can also continue to use these sprays in the spring and summer, in order to protect plants from the dangers of drought and strong heat. Reapply the spray in the winter after heavy ice and snow, which can wash away the protective emulsion coat.
